Reply to Roosevelt Plea Already Given to Printers
DUE TOMORROW

Reich Press Ridicules Conscription Move In Britain

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt will refuse to consider Hitler's public speech tomorrow as a reply to his peace appeal addressed to the German leader.

High quarters indicated today that the president would expect a written reply to his written appeal.

Consequently, there will be no official comment tomorrow on Hitler's speech.

The attitude of officials today was that the fact that Mr. Roosevelt sent Hitler a written telegram requires Hitler to make a written answer. Such is the procedure of diplomacy.

Berlin—(AP)—Nazis prepared today to give a lavish reception to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's reichstag speech tomorrow and discounted Great Britain's conscription measure as a political move intended to frighten Germany.

The attitude of the controlled newspapers was that Britain may "arm up to the neck" if she wishes.

Preparations were underway to ensure that every German, even those in the smallest village, would be able to hear the fuhrer answer President Roosevelt's proposals of non-aggression guarantees.

Squads of workers were busy stringing wires and setting up loudspeakers on the streets and public squares, and in theaters, Nazi community houses and party headquarters throughout the country.

When Hitler leaves his chancellor's office shortly before noon tomorrow tens of thousands will crowd the sidewalks on the Wilhelmstrasse and Unter den Linden up to the Kroll Opera house, scene of the speech.

Envoys To Attend Sir Neville Henderson, the British ambassador, and Robert Coulondre, France's envoy, who returned to Berlin this week after absences of more than a month, "to report" to their governments on the destruction of Czechoslovakia, planned to occupy their usual boxes.

(The United States ambassador, Hugh R. Wilson, was summoned to Washington last November to report on the German anti-Jewish campaign and has not returned to his post.)

German officials maintained deep secrecy as to the contents of the fuhrer's declaration, although it was known that he had completed it yesterday and turned it over to translators and printers two days before delivery—a marked departure from his usual custom.

However, it was stated that the text of the speech would not be available until the fuhrer nearly has finished delivering it (about 6:30 a. m. C.S.T., Friday).

A Nazi spokesman summed up German reaction to Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech on conscription with the sarcastic comment, "you probably can train men to use umbrellas in six months, but you can't train them for modern warfare within that time."

The Berliner Lokai, an Anzeiger termed the measure, "a political and agitating action of the Chamberlain encirclement cabinet."

NEW ROOSEVELT PLEA: Washington—(AP)—The belief was growing in diplomatic circles today that President Roosevelt might address further peace queries to Adolf Hitler if the German chancellor left the door open tomorrow in his reichstag speech.

The Nazi leader will discuss the president's appeal of April 15 that Hitler and Mussolini pledge 10 or 25 years of non-aggression against 31 nations. In return for such a promise, Mr. Roosevelt proposed calling world economic and disarmament conferences.

If Hitler makes counter demands or does not reject flatly the conference idea, it was considered probable.

British Leader Warns Against Forcing Election

Sees 'Very Heavy Responsibility' for Those Seeking Test

London—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain warned the labor opposition in the house of commons today against forcing a general election on conscription as he opened the debate on the emergency conscription bill he announced yesterday.

"I foresee that matters might be pushed to such an extremity that this government would not have any other choice" than to order an election, he said amid laborite cheers and counter-cheers from the government benches.

"But surely," he added, "a very heavy responsibility would rest upon those who force such a conclusion at this time."

"An election would leave the country in a state of confusion and uncertainty, postpone for what might be vital weeks, measures which the government thought necessary, check the output of munitions vital to us at this time and distract the attention of those who are responsible for government departments."

One Killed, Another Hurt in Mine Clash

Coshocton, Ohio—(AP)—One man was killed and another wounded this afternoon when a group identified as striking coal miners attempted to rush the Reiter mine one mile from Otego, Ohio, Sheriff Jay Abbott reported.

The dead man was identified as John Abrahams of New Philadelphia.

Sheriff Abbott said the men, about 200 strikers, earlier in the day beat two coal truck drivers.

Sheriff Abbott said he was advised the men attempted to rush the Reiter mine tippie and that an unidentified guard, armed with a machine gun and a rifle, fired on them, killing Abrahams and wounding the other man.

The Reiter mine now is closed but had been operating a few days ago.

De Valera Cancels His Proposed Visit to U. S.

Dublin—(AP)—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera announced in the dail today that he had cancelled his trip to the United States on which he was to have left Saturday.

De Valera said his reason for cancellation of the trip was "yesterday's grave event"—an apparent reference to Hitler's adoption of conscription.

The American-born Irish premier was to have opened the Irish pavilion at the New York world's fair and was expected also to visit President Roosevelt in Washington.

The British government was understood to have under consideration whether thousands of Irishmen working in England and Scotland would come under the conscription measure. It was said also to be debating the advisability of applying conscription to northern Ireland (AP-ter).

Gen. Marshall Appointed as Chief of Staff

Pennsylvanian Gets Post During Greatest Peacetime Activity

PROGRAM PUSHED

Appointee to be Among Key Men in Period Of Expansion

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt today selected Brigadier General George C. Marshall, slender, 58-year-old Pennsylvanian, for the army's highest post during its greatest peacetime expansion.

Marshall will succeed Malin Craig in August as chief of staff. He will rank among the youngest ever to attain the post. Craig is nearing 64.

His selection meant that Mr. Roosevelt passed over several officers who were his senior in service. Marshall entered the army in 1902 upon his graduation from Virginia Military institute.

For the next four years, ranking as a full general, Marshall will be one of the key men in handling the army's increase, which was highlighted today by the commencement of work on the first of more than 3,000 new warplanes.

Factories Start Work

Five factories began work on orders for 571 planes—pursuit models capable of making more than 300 miles an hour, interceptor ships which will travel over 350 miles an hour and engine bombers.

The aircraft order was by far the largest ever placed in peacetime and was a central feature of the $552,000,000 national defense program.

In selecting Marshall over his seniors, Mr. Roosevelt followed the procedure he used in nominating Rear Admiral Harold R. Stark as chief of naval operations. The same as Marshall, Stark will succeed Admiral William D. Leahy, after congress adjourns. Stark was advanced over the entire top half of rear admirals.

Marshall, a native of Uniontown, Pa., advanced to the rank of brigadier general on Oct. 1, 1936.

36 Years In Service

In his 36-year military career, Marshall has served in the Philippines, China, and various posts in the continental United States. He commanded the Fifth infantry brigade at Vancouver barracks, Wash., before coming to the national capital last July.

In the World War, General Marshall won the distinguished service medal for "untiring, painstaking, and energetic efforts" as staff officer.

Investigate WPA Jobs in New York

Federal Arts and Construction Projects are Facing Probe

Washington—(AP)—The house committee investigating the WPA decided today to delve into federal arts and construction projects in New York.

Committee members declined to divulge immediately what witnesses would be called, in a new series of hearings at New York next week, but asserted representatives of the WPA would be permitted to offer rebuttal testimony.

Investigators have been at work in New York for the last two weeks looking up on activities of the WPA's federal theater and writers projects. Engineers also have been looked into the handling of construction projects, chiefly to determine whether funds had been wastefully expended.

Members said the committee also discussed the question of getting more prompt action from WPA on the committee's requests for information. There was no indication, however, as to what action had been decided on.

Rumania Opposed to Mutual Assistance Pact. Paris Is Told

Paris—(AP)—Rumania was reported today to have advised Great Britain and France of her opposition of entering mutual assistance pacts with them at last for the present.

This development was reported as foreign minister Georges Bonnet conferred with Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador to Paris, before the Frenchman started conferences with Rumanian foreign minister Grigore Gafencu.

It was understood in diplomatic circles that the British envoy had brought the report that Gafencu, in his earlier talks in London, had expressed Rumania's opposition to immediate entry into mutual assistance pacts.

Britain and France already have pledged their aid to Rumania in event her independence is attacked but it is a one-way pledge which they would like to make reciprocal.

Diplomatic sources said Bonnet told Gafencu that France's policy in the talks but had decided not to press upon Gafencu Anglo-French proposals for tightening of their relations.

Manslaughter Verdict Against Joseph Woelfel

Baraboo—(AP)—A circuit court jury, after deliberating 3 hours and 25 minutes, today convicted Joseph Woelfel, 30, of fourth degree manslaughter in the "Coon Hollow" slaying last Oct. 24 of Patrick and Maurice Healy, elderly bachelor brothers.

Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann said he would pronounce sentence Monday. The jury had been given its choice of three verdicts—third and fourth degree manslaughter and acquittal.

Pittman Wants to Let President Cut Trade With Japan

Would Let Executive Impose Restrictions With 10 Days' Notice

Washington—(AP)—Senator Pittman (D-Ne.) introduced today a resolution to empower the president, with 10 days' notice to congress, to impose trade restrictions against Japan.

Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, proposed the resolution as a reply to Japan's alleged violation of the nine-power treaty pledging signatories to respect the territorial integrity of China.

It would exclude agricultural products from any embargoes that might be levied by the president, and was designed, his author said, to give the president a powerful argument in attempting to dissuade Japan from alleged discrimination against American citizens in China.

Aimed at Japan

The nine-power treaty was intended to insure equal treatment of all nationals of the treaty signatories in China. Pittman's resolution would empower the president to take action against any signatory found to be violating the treaty, but its author let it be known it was designated to affect Japan primarily.

If the resolution were adopted, congress would have no further check on the president's action except possible repeal of the Pittman resolution during the 10-day period of notice before the president acted.

"This resolution," Pittman said in explanation, "would place in the hands of the president power which does not now exist."

"This power probably would aid him in facilitating an understanding with Japan, with regard to the abandonment on Japan's part of the unusual and careless war practices which constantly threaten the lives of our citizens in China."

Senate Confirms Pohn for Office

Wausau Attorney Gets Board of Control Post By 27 to 4 Vote

Madison—(AP)—The appointment of Arthur W. Pohn, Wausau attorney, to state board of control was confirmed by the senate today, 27 to 4.

Although Governor Heil appointed Pohn for a term ending in February, 1943, to succeed Colonel John J. Hannan, resigned, a bill pending in the legislature would abolish the board and consolidate all welfare activities in one department.

Governor Heil has two previous appointees, Frank C. Klose, Milwaukee, and Mrs. Lila Burton, Eagle, met no opposition in the senate, but four progressives voted to reject Pohn.

Senator Kresky, Green Bay; Greenquist, Racine; Hampel, Milwaukee, and Risser, Madison, cast the minority votes.

The author said the state's financial problems have become far more involved than when the emergency board was first created and that the legislature should have more representation. The board has statutory control over fiscal matters when the legislature is not in session and in recent years has been granted control over various state appropriations.

Hastings, 33, jobless steel worker, waived a jury trial. The three-judge court heard of 18 months' illicit love between him and his 23-year-old inamorata prior to the finding of Schlett's broken body on a snowy highway.

Officers found 10 sticks of dynamite, a dry cell battery, wires and a percussion cap in a small box he carried.

Roosevelt Asks Relief Fund of $1,750,000,000 For Coming Fiscal Year

Urges Roads Plan For Peace Traffic And Defense Needs

Transmits Report Proposing System of Inter-Regional Highways

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt recommended to congress today that it provide a system of highways "to meet the requirements of the national defense and the needs of a growing peace time traffic of longer range."

And, as a means of partially paying the cost of this highway system, he emphasized a bureau of public roads recommendation that in future "excess" land be taken along right-of-way. This excess land would be rented or sold after completion of the highways, to reimburse the government for part of the cost of the roads.

The president transmitted a letter from Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, concurred in by Secretary of War Woodring, to which was attached a report of the bureau of public roads on "the feasibility of a system of transcontinental toll roads and a master plan for free highway development."

Report Rejects Plan

The bureau said it believed a proposed toll system of six transcontinental superhighways would be neither financially feasible nor adequate to meet traffic needs. It suggested instead a system of inter-regional highways designed to meet requirements of national defense and the needs of a growing motor traffic.

"It emphasizes the need of a special system of direct inter-regional highways, with all necessary connections through and around cities," Mr. Roosevelt said of the bureau report.

Saying the difficulty of right-of-way acquisition was an obstacle in developing highways and city streets, the president called "the special attention of the congress to the discussion of the principle of 'excess-taking' of land for highways."

Assembly Passes Bill Creating New Emergency Board

Amendment Eliminates Division of Departmental Research

Madison—(AP)—The assembly, in a surprise move, today passed the Grass bill for a new state emergency board, with an amendment which eliminates the state division of departmental research created about a month ago.

The research department act provided for a director within the executive office to be appointed by the governor and appropriated $15,000 for the state division of departmental research. It originated with the senate committee on legislative procedure. The governor, however, took no action to put the division in operation.

Assemblyman Frank Graess (R) Sturgeon Bay, said that the new measure, which he sponsored, would make the division unnecessary.

Board Enlarged

The emergency board, enlarged from three to six members, would carry out the same functions but with an appropriation of $25,000. Graess said.

The bill and the amendment received approval in the assembly, 84 to 6, without debate. Graess told newspaper men that both had been approved unanimously by the joint finance committee.

The present emergency board consists of the governor and the senate and assembly chairmen of the finance committee. The Grass bill, if passed by the senate, would add three more members of the finance committee.

The author said the state's financial problems have become far more involved than when the emergency board was first created and that the legislature should have more representation. The board has statutory control over fiscal matters when the legislature is not in session and in recent years has been granted control over various state appropriations.

Daily Programs at Cooking School Will be Streamlined To Close Half Hour Earlier

A "streamlined" 1939 Post-Crescent cooking school is promised for next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings in the Rio theater, with well planned daily programs which will end more than a half hour earlier than last year's sessions.

The lesson proper will begin promptly at 9 o'clock each morning and the program will zip along in smooth-running, orderly fashion to close at 11:15. By eliminating the time spent in waiting for the other features which have proved so popular with cooking school audiences in previous years, the management feels that it is bowing to the wishes of the majority of women in allowing them to get out of the school earlier and reach their homes in time to prepare their noon meals.

An innovation this year will be a half hour organ recital by Mrs. Harold Ferren from 8:30 to 9 o'clock each morning of the school. Thus, those women who arrive early in order to have their choice of seats will be entertained by organ music while waiting for the school to begin.

At 9 o'clock each day Miss Mary Ann Kidd, lecturer and demonstrator, will appear before her audience for a lesson in homemaking and an informal period of questions and discussion, and this will continue until 9:45 when there will be a brief intermission for announcements. The class will be resumed at 10 o'clock and will continue until 10:40 when gifts will be awarded, interspersed with selections by Tom Temple's orchestra. Dismissal will be at 11:15 each day.

Tickets for the cooking school at 10 cents per session went on sale yesterday at convenient business places in Appleton. Neerach-Memphis, Kimberly, Little Chute and Kaukauna. The places are as follows: Appleton—Lutz Ice com-

Vessels Collide Near Lightship

Craft With Royalty Aboard Not Much Damaged; Pilot Boat Sinks

New York—(AP)—The Norwegian motorship Oslofjord, bearing Crown Prince Olaf and Crown Princess Martha of Norway, and the pilot boat Sandy Hook collided off Ambrose lightship shortly after 6:30 a. m. today.

The crash occurred 12 miles out of New York harbor in a dense fog that had forced all shipping to anchor overnight outside the channel.

The Sandy Hook, badly crippled, sank while attempting to reach shore. The Oslofjord made no immediate radio appeal for assistance, and first information was that she was not seriously damaged.

The pilot boat's crew was saved by the Oslofjord. The liner dropped anchor immediately, but later resumed its trip up the harbor with a police launch acting as pilot.

The crash arrived at Quarantine a short while later.

Prince Olaf and his princess are coming for a 10 weeks visit, including a weekend stay at President Roosevelt's Hyde Park, N. Y., home.

The pilot boat New York and three coast guard vessels were dispatched to aid the Sandy Hook in its efforts to reach shallow water. Shortly afterward, coast guard officials said the boat had sunk en route.

Apparently no one aboard the sturdy Norwegian steamer was hurt.

Final Action Blocked In State Assembly on Integrated Bar Bill

Madison—(AP)—The integrated bar bill, requiring all attorneys to be members of an official state bar association, was blocked in the assembly today by a 45 to 46 tie vote on engrossment.

Under the rules the tie prevented the bill being ordered to a third reading, but with eight members absent or not voting a motion for reconsideration was believed certain.

The bill was introduced by Assemblyman Catlin (R) Appleton.

The house turned down an amendment by Assemblyman Biemiller (D) Milwaukee, which would have required a three-fourths vote of all attorneys for the approval of rules and practices laid down by the state supreme court.

Biemiller led the opposition to the measure on the ground that it was compulsory legislation that was not needed. He said attorneys favored the three-fourths rule on the union "closed shop" in the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture's labor bill and should be willing to apply the same rule to themselves.

Toscanini Supt Off Feet as Crowd Tries To See Spencer Tracy

London—(AP)—Arturo Toscanini, the symphony maestro, was swept off his feet and flung against a baggage truck on Waterloo station platform last night by a crowd in its eagerness to catch a glimpse of Spencer Tracy, the film actor, who was arriving on a boat train.

The maestro escaped injury. The train was backed out of the station to avoid the crush and the Hollywood star and Mrs. Tracy got off at another station.

Toscanini and Tracy arrived at Southampton yesterday on the Queen Mary. The crowd at Waterloo station was mostly women. After the boat train had backed out, policemen told them, "Your hero has left."

Unbelieving, the throng met all trains for several hours afterward.

Seek Referendum On Age Pension Funds in State

Resolution Also Aims to Sound Sentiment on Aid to Northern Areas

Madison — (7)—Joint resolutions for an advisory referendum on financing old age assistance and for a legislative program to rehabilitate 26 northern counties were introduced in the assembly today.

Charles Budlong (R) Marinette, and Elmer Genszner (D) Mayville, asked for a statewide vote in April, 1940, to determine what taxation program should be adopted in raising pension funds.

"Many members feel it is advisable to secure an advisory opinion from the taxpayers," the resolution said.

The voters would be asked to decide which of the three following taxation methods they considered most desirable:

1. A general retail sales tax on articles, except food, selling for 25 cents or more.

2. A one mill tax on real estate and personal property in addition to existing taxes.

3. Both of the foregoing taxes.

Henry J. Berquist (P), Rhineland, sponsored a resolution for appointment of three assemblymen and three senators to draft a coordinated land utilization policy to aid northern counties.

"These counties," the resolution said, "have been stripped of their major natural resources—timber—causing thousands of acres to become tax delinquent."

The resolution contended that unemployment is materially greater in the 26 counties than in any other region of the state.

Berquist suggested the committee take up with the state administration a proposal to establish a "Wisconsin forest works authority" which would direct the rehabilitation program. He asked that the committee report results of such a conference to the legislature by May 27.

The resolution said more than 1,000,000 acres in the 26 counties reverted to public ownership because of tax delinquency and suggested that the land be purchased by the state or entered under the forest crop law. It also proposed a work program of selective logging on approximately 151,433 acres of state land.

The committee would consist of one member from each of the three major political parties.

New house bills would:

Levy additional taxes of 1 cent a gallon on all fuel and diesel oil and 5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas, the proceeds to go into the state general fund.

Grant state reformatory inmates 5 days off sentences for each 30 days they are engaged in stone or granite work.

Press Cooperates In Gambling Drive

Evansville Newspapers Ban Horse Race News At Mayor's Request

Evansville, Ind.—(7)—Horse race entries and results were missing from Evansville newspapers today as they acceded to a plea from Mayor William H. Dress for help in putting a stop to gambling.

The Press (evening) and the Courier (morning) announced in editorials they would stop publishing news after the mayor expressed belief it was a "big incentive to gambling."

Mayor Dress banned all gambling in Evansville Monday. Sheriff E. F. Diekmann ordered gambling places closed in other parts of Vanderburg county.

Race-track wire service to bookie shops was suspended.

The Press announced its intention of withholding publication of race entries and results "as long as the mayor keeps bookie shops closed."

The Courier, in an editorial on page one, said, "If all the mayor needs to destroy the race gambling business is the elimination of the race results and entries from the Courier, he has that necessary weapon."

Acting Police Chief William Hyland said the ban applied to five numbers game operators here whose take he estimated at $40,000 yearly.

Police reported several operators of dice and card games had left the city.

Farley Takes Lead in Healing Wounds of Democratic Ranks

Washington — (7)—A revival of efforts to bring peace and harmony into Democratic ranks has been undertaken by James A. Farley, the party generalissimo who specializes in fighting Republicans.

He has the active help of Representative Rayburn of Texas, the house floor leader, and at least the strong acquiescence of Vice President Garner. Both are highly potent factors on Capitol Hill.

Politicians watching the flow of events in congress say there is a lessening of tension among Democrats and ascribe this in part, at least, to the efforts of Farley and Rayburn.

As symptoms of this changing sentiment, they point to strong Democratic support being accorded President Roosevelt's government reorganization program and to the almost solid muster of house Democrats last week behind the bill to renew the president's monetary powers.

Talk Things Over

A luncheon last week on the senate side brought several Democrats with conflicting views to the same table with Garner and Farley. Those two men went to a baseball game together later and are resuming their talks this week.

Certainly their conversations, and those that Farley is having with other Democrats, cover a wider range than simply the single objective of party peace. But a great many Democrats agree it would do little good to figure out a ticket for 1940 if the convention turns into a Democratic free-for-all instead of a rally.

Both Farley and Rayburn were in a good position to mediate. Farley took little part in the primary election battles of last summer, and has maintained friendly relations with most elements of the party. Rayburn, long a close friend of Garner, has a strong personal liking for President Roosevelt and has been a staunch supporter of his general program.

Friends of the vice president insist that although Garner has never hesitated to tell Mr. Roosevelt when he disagreed with a presidential proposal, these exchanges have always been on a friendly basis.

World Traveler Gives Lecture on Arabia at School

Editor of Globe Magazine, Shows Pictures of Arabian Life

Clarence W. Sorenson, associate editor of Globe magazine and a student of world affairs, took the students of Appleton High school over a 2,000-mile trek Wednesday afternoon through the desert sands of Arabia and into the cities and villages.

Sorenson presented his illustrated lecture, "Caravan Trails in Arabia" for the lyceum assembly.

Early in his address the speaker dispelled any romantic ideas about Arab sheiks which might have been fostered by the popular cycle of Hollywood motion pictures several years ago. "You find something romantic in a fat old man who never bathes or changes his robe from one season to the next," he challenged the girls in his audience.

The Arab headress, he explained, has a two-fold purpose. It can protect the wearer from the sands which damage the lungs and it can disguise him as he steals his neighbors' cattle. "Stealing in Arabia is no more immoral than it is for one team to take the ball away from the other in America," he stated.

"The code of ethics dictates that the Arab must not steal cattle from anyone closer than a cousin or murder anyone closer than a second cousin."

Shows Pictures

By means of his motion pictures Sorenson showed his audience the deep sand dunes of the desert, the historical pyramids outside of the city of Cairo, the activities of the cities, the primitive methods of plowing. "Perhaps this picture does not seem thrilling to you now," he stated as an ancient plowshare drawn by oxen was flashed on the screen. "But just remember that if you had been a member of the Roman legion over 2,000 years ago, you would have witnessed exactly the same thing."

The climax of the journey was the wedding feast at Tallal. His pictures showed how the tribesman celebrated, how they prepared meat pots of camel's meat how they scooped the rice from one big bowl with their hands.

Sorenson is a member of the Royal Geographic society of Great Britain, a distinct honor for an American. He has contributed articles and pictures to the National Geographic magazine.

Being City Mayor Isn't All Roses; There Is Grief Too

BY E. L. BISELX

Maybe you would like to be mayor of Appleton? Maybe you're one of those who think all the mayor has to worry about is getting re-elected?

But that isn't all there is to it. A mayor's worries start when he gets enough votes in an election and only end when he finally gives up and quits or is defeated by someone who thinks it's an easy job.

Worrying about city finances and how he is going to come out on this year's budget, being first to buy a ticket or donate to a cause, making speeches almost any time of the day or evening, playing nurse maid for citizens who have problems, these are only part of the grief of being mayor.

For example, when the Red Cross opens its annual drive, the mayor has to have his picture taken while he pays for the first Red Cross button to publicize the Salvation Army's Christmas drive, he gets his picture taken donating to that cause. For tag days and drives of every description, the mayor is always first to give for publicity's sake.

Telephone Problems

If someone's dog gets into a neighbor's yard and tears up the flowers, the mayor is sure to hear about it when the offended person wants to know what can legally be done about it. Differences over property lines, the height of fences, special taxes on improvements and countless other problems confront the mayor every day. He has to iron them out or refer them to the proper department for investigation.

The everyday business of running the city is within the budget while providing the service and improvements demanded by taxpayers requires a magician but the mayor together with the other city officers have to do just that every day and try to make ends meet.

Maybe you would like to be mayor?

Prepares Speeches

He has to prepare speeches for every convention or gathering of any sort where the committee thinks it would be a good idea to have the mayor talk. He welcomes individuals, organizations and conventions to the city and is really the official front for the city.

Speeches sometimes take up so much of the mayor's time that he doesn't have an evening at home with his pipe, slippers and newspaper for months on end. Celebrations of every description demand his presence including dedications and the laying of cornerstones.

When the baseball season opens, the mayor throws the first ball and for all official bowling tournaments through the mayor doesn't bowl with much, he has to pay an entrance fee and roll the first ball of the tournament.

He attends homecoming football games in an official capacity, rides in the homecoming parades, Labor day parades, Fourth of July parades and has to be seen at all the major social functions to lead the grand march.

If a celebrity comes to town, the mayor has to meet him, he has to

Surplus Supplies are Given to 733 Families

A total of 733 families, including 3,481 individuals, received surplus commodities from the Outagamie County Public Welfare department last month, it was reported today. The commodities, purchased as surplus supplies by the government, included butter, corn meal, condensed milk, dried peaches, fresh fruit, flour, prunes and rice. Because a shipment of fresh fruit was received this month after some of the regular deliveries were made, some persons failed to get their allotment. This will be included in the early deliveries next month.

Predicts Higher State Tax Burden Than Last 2 Years

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Places Part of Blame on LaFollette

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—The United States Chamber of Commerce predicts a higher state tax burden in Wisconsin during the present biennium than during the preceding two years, but places part of the blame on the previous Phil LaFollette administration.

The increased taxes, the chamber says, are "due to the fact that relief continues to be a persistent problem and because the outgoing administration left the state financially in a rather embarrassing condition."

In a special number of its "Washington Review," reporting the legislative situation in the states, the United States chamber praises the repeal of Wisconsin's labor relations act and the new substitute act passed. It says:

"Wisconsin repealed its labor relations act and substituted one placing greater emphasis on employers' rights and limiting picketing."

"Wisconsin's revised act was sponsored by the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, an organization having 80,000 members. Although outlawing secondary picketing, the legislation legalizes sympathetic strikes which may support strikes in similar occupations in other plants."

"The bill enumerates unfair labor practices on the part of employers as well as employers. Ten days' notice of strikes involving perishable farm goods is required."

Fred H. Clausen, Horicon manufacturer, will discuss taxes at the national convention here May 1-4.

America Desires To Restore Good Terms With Japan

Different Approach Required in Problem of Pacific, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Many people wondered why, on the same day that President Roosevelt issued his peace appeal to Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini, the United States fleet was suddenly ordered back to the Pacific. Many observers also wondered why so little was said about aggression in the far east. The explanation is that the United States government is anxious to restore good relations with Japan as to see peace in Europe, but the circumstances surrounding the problem in the Pacific have required a different approach.

It is well known here, of course, that Berlin has been putting pressure on the Japanese to make an open declaration of purpose to go along with the so-called axis powers, and that such a statement would imply a disturbance of the status quo in the Pacific which could not be of direct interest to the United States. If the decision of Tokyo is to rely on the coercive influence of physical force rather than amicable negotiation of a solution of existing problems as they relate to Great Britain, the United States, France and the Netherlands, then the sending of the American fleet back to the Pacific is merely a signal of self-protection on the part of America's makers of foreign policy.

Demonstrate Friendship
But the true American desire, the hope and intention of the American government, is to reestablish the friendliest possible relations with Tokyo. When the president sent a cruiser to Japan bearing the ashes of the former Japanese ambassador to the United States and the Japanese people through their press noted this demonstration of friendship with deepest appreciation, it was a sign of the hopes of the Washington government that some way might be found to bring Japanese-American relations to the status they formerly had.

The problems of Chinese-Japanese friction are not regarded here as insuperable. A peace can be negotiated between China and Japan, but the real question is what can this be made to mean in economic terms. Wherever one turns in the international unrest of today, leading to threats of war, there is a basic economic problem which could yield to treatment if the other nations of the world would but see the disinterestedness of purpose of the United States government as a possible mediator.

Commercial Expansion
Thus, in respect to China, what the Japanese want is an opportunity for their crowded population to expand commercially in the far east. The American government has no objection to Japanese commercial expansion, in fact, would like to help encourage it, but the Japanese government has used up a substantial amount of capital and the whole Japanese national economy cannot utilize the gains made in China unless capital comes in from the outside.

America stands in an impregnable position as the possessor of vast gold holdings which can be used as a basis for international investment by private individuals. But, with a danger of friction with Japan, there is no inclination on the part of American capital to enter into any development plans along with the Japanese.

The way to an unprecedented commercial expansion for the benefit not only of the Japanese, but other nations, including the United States could be opened by the negotiation of a Chinese-Japanese peace treaty and the formulation of an international plan for the development of Chinese national resources. The American government might be willing to discuss such a comprehensive program if it could be assured that the Japanese and Chinese would be ready to agree on peace terms, and if the United States could be further assured that Japan would not involve herself in the so-called "power" politics of Europe which could at any time disturb the best laid of economic plans. British interests in the far east are extensive, and, in the old days, the United States, Great Britain and France and the Netherlands, together with Germany and Japan, furnished most of the capital for the development of China.

Heavily in Debt
Today, obviously, Germany is out of the picture and Japan is heavily in debt as a consequence of military operations in China. So it would be much more inexpensive for Japan if peace came in the far east and a new plan of economic development were adopted in which Japan played a much more vital part than even before. In other words, the partnership between the Japanese and other nations could be arranged on a basis proportionate to the stake involved, and there is no longer a tendency here to disregard the realities of a Japanese sphere of influence in the far east, provided that Japan, like the United States in Latin America does not use that sphere of influence in a way detrimental to the continued investment of other capital.

America is deeply interested in a new entente with Japan, but the chance of such a development would be immeasurably diminished if the Tokyo diplomats allowed themselves to become entangled too deeply in the Rome-Berlin axis maneuvers.

City Should Help Attract Tourists, Mayor Tells Club

Nelson Urges Beautification of Kaukauna in Talk to Rotarians

Kaukauna—Beautification of the city both to attract visitors and "sell" local residents on their own community was urged yesterday noon in a talk by Mayor Lewis F. Nelson at Hotel Kaukauna before the Rotary club.

Clubs have a responsibility to the state to so improve themselves to their part in attracting tourists, Nelson said, with Wisconsin annually receiving about $250,000,000 from this source. It is the state's second largest industry, the mayor said. "One of the most difficult things to do is to convince residents of the local attractions which might be developed as inducements for tourists to visit Kaukauna. We should not lose sight of the large ultimate gain for the slight cost to us now."

Advertising booklet Nelson mentioned the booklet now being prepared by Francis Bowman of Madison as a step in the right direction. It will advertise Kaukauna's cheap power, schools and all other advantages, he brought out.

The mayor praised the American Legion for laying the cornerstone of the move to beautify the city by erecting the wall on the north side of the high school. The tree planting ordinance recently passed by the council, and a zoning measure which will come before it soon, were hailed as further steps in the city's advancement.

Two Kaukauna Youths To Attend Boys Camp

Kaukauna—Lee Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Cooper, 3651 W. Wisconsin avenue, has been named to represent Kaukauna High school at the Boy's State camp, to be held June 17 to 24 at St. John's Military academy, Delaware. The camp is sponsored by the Milwaukee American Legion post. Leo Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wolfe, 216 Whitney street, will attend as a representative of the American Legion. Kaukauna Post No. 41. Alternates are Clarence DeBruin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert DeBruin, 1108 Desmoyer street, and Harold Stuber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Stuber, 623 Whitney street. When the 600 boys reach camp the entire assemblage becomes a mythical 49th state, to function according to Wisconsin laws.

High School Alumni

News to be Published

Kaukauna—The annual edition of the Alumni News is being prepared by the Kaukauna High School Alumni association, with James I. McFadden, editor-in-chief. The copy deadline is Monday, and those with items concerning graduates are being asked to have them in by that date. The directors of the association are helping to edit the paper. Plans are being made for the rally to be held here June 10. James Cavanaugh, Brown county agricultural agent, will be rally master. A dance will be held. The directors will make further arrangements when they meet May 1.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

Washington—It is not supposed to be known, but the principal obstacle facing Roosevelt on reorganization is personality and prima donna stuff. He can't shift bureau away from chiefs who are powerful with congress and who don't want them shifted.

Big surprise package Roosevelt has been working on for some time is the transfer of Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, to be head of an expanded Commerce department, with Commerce Secretary Hopkins transferred to be Secretary of the Navy. Two motives are behind this.

1. To give the Navy department, at this crucial time, an active executive as its chief.

2. To put various lending agencies, such as the RFC, Commodity Credit corporation, Export-Import bank, Home Owners Loan corporation, Farm Credit administration and Federal Housing administration, all under the Commerce department.

Roosevelt's first plan was to lump these all under Harry Hopkins, but this was spiced by Jesse Jones. Jesse didn't like the idea of giving up his present independent status as RFC chairman and working under Hopkins.

So Jesse scammed up to Capitol Hill and proceeded to enlist his many friends in a "Stop-Roosevelt-from-Transferring-the-RFC" movement. Jesse, a Texan, has powerful friends in congress, among them Vice President Garner. They promptly served notice on the White House that Jesse Jones was not to be subordinated to a New Deal cabinet member.

Gun-Shy FDR
After his bitter experience over Tom Amlic's appointment to the Interstate Commerce commission, Roosevelt has become gun-shy regarding senate confirmations, so he decided not to risk a fight over Jesse Jones and his RFC.

Instead he turned toward the navy which is in a woeful condition as to its civilian executives. Secretary of the Navy Swanson has striven desperately to hold up his end, but his 77 years and failing health have made it almost impossible. When he attends cabinet meetings, Swanson has to wait until his aide enters the room to help him up from his chair.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison also has been stricken with a serious eye ailment and cannot resume work for some time. Roosevelt is most fond of Swanson and has hesitated about replacing him. The Secretary of the Navy has no income other than his government salary. However, the needs of the navy, which are vital at this period of renewed building, have convinced the president that personnel changes are necessary.

Garner And Tourist
Ambling by the crowded senate restaurant on the ground floor of the Capitol, silver-thatched Jack Garner was stopped by a young woman who asked to be directed to a rest room. Started, the vice president beckoned urgently to a nearby guard, who ran over and inquired solicitously, "Yes, Mr. Garner."

"Heavens!" gasped the lady tourist, "are you the vice president? Why, I thought you were just another employee around here." Garner waited to hear no more. Abandoning both the gaping woman and the grinning policeman, he dashed into the dining room and hustled toward a side entrance.

Senate Speedster
The senate has a new speed champ. Senator Homer Bone, wily

Washingtonian, has been de-throned as fast talker in the chamber by Senator Charles W. Tobey, plump New Hampshire rookie.

One of the fleetest speakers in the history of the senate, Bone frequently hits a high of 300 words a minute. But he isn't in Tobey's class. The newcomer tears along at a steady rate of around 400 words a minute.

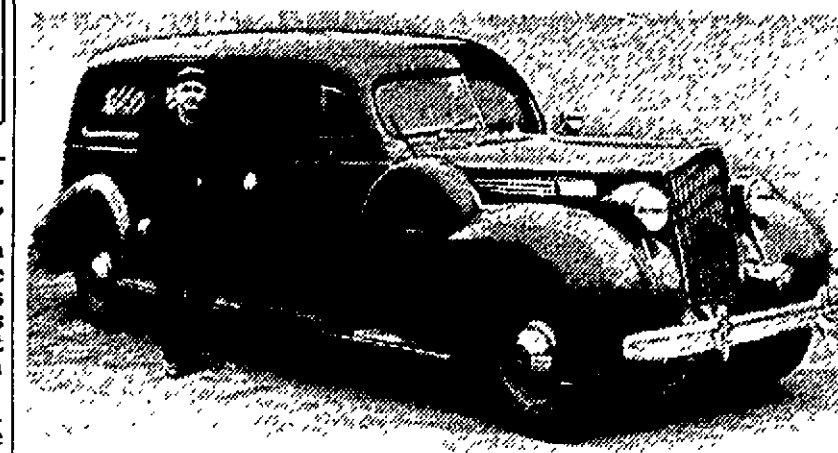

That is bad enough for the official reporters, but what makes it worse is that Tobey has an impediment in his speech which makes it extremely difficult to understand him. When he came to the senate he warned the shorthand aces about his shortcoming.

"Newspapermen back home called me a 'reporter killer,'" he said, "I'm going to be a tough customer for you to handle and I'll help you in any way you suggest."

Note—The average flow of senate oratory is 150 words a minute. The late Senator J. "Ham" Lewis of Illinois was a slow talker but difficult to "take" because of the extreme length of his sentences. Once he delivered a sentence 1100 words long.

Wrong House
Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, 8-term Massachusetts Republican congresswoman, didn't realize how high she rates with her constituents until the other day.

A delegation conferred with her on a legislative matter and to finish the discussion she invited the group to have breakfast with her the following morning in the "House restaurant". She appeared at the appointed hour, but no constituents. After a 20-minute wait she had about decided that something had gone wrong, when suddenly she was called to the telephone.

NEW OSCAR KUNITZ AMBULANCE

Emergency calls in the county now are being answered by Oscar Kunitz with a new ambulance which arrived this week. The machine carries modern ambulance equipment and the stretcher compartment has its own heater for cold weather. The stretcher, which is equipped with pneumatic tires, does not move as it fits into an automatic catch which can be released by the push of a button. Kunitz is shown above with the new ambulance. SENATOR BILBO AND THE NEGRO

Senator (What-a-man!) Bilbo, of Mississippi has introduced one of the strangest bills in congress that has been seen there in a long time.

Both the senator's reputation as a light-hearted thinker and the unique provisions of the act may together conceal the fact that it is literally packed with merit. For it recognizes the real reason why the south is poor and it realizes that so long as the south has the negro it must remain poor.

We know that a statement like this will be abhorrent to the administration. At Washington they still fondly cling to the idea that you make wealth by staying abed and that families may still gain good clothes, plentiful food and warm and tidy homes without producing wealth at all.

Senator Bilbo proposes to rid the south of those negroes who voluntarily consent to go to another land by purchase from France and England, who dominate Africa, of about 400,000 square miles of good territory adjacent to the little republic of Liberia.

The senator expects that we may pay for these lands by credit upon the debts that France and Britain have owed us since the World war. That, of course, will likely provide the first stumbling block.

France and Britain, having acquired sovereignty over these lands, treat them as a divine responsibility and will tell us, no doubt, that much as they would like to make the transfer, they would be reluctant to their trust as the administrator over other peoples by so doing.

A black man has always occupied a difficult position in America. He didn't come here of his own accord but his coming created a great problem and was the more or less direct cause of a bloody civil war.

Today he is provided only with the poorest and meanest of jobs. With a few exceptions he is denied by the force of all these circumstances the opportunity to really get ahead in the world according to American standards.

And yet he is immeasurably better off than his relatives who weren't caught in the slave's nets a hundred years and more ago and brought out of Africa.

As a race, the black man is not a wealth producer, and this because, as a race, he is not a determined, persistent, steady worker. He has many attractive qualities, a constant youthfulness, a gaiety seldom to be denied, but he is almost constantly deluded and entrapped by any sort of an artful promise, by superstition, by wild and impractical ideas.

As a result of all these qualities he does not produce wealth comparable to his white brethren, and nowhere in the world has he ever been able to set up enduring government without assistance.

When Senator Bilbo looks over the census of the south and finds that in all states the black population is heavy, and that in several states the blacks outnumber the whites, he has found perhaps the greatest single reason why the south is poor.

But of course America would not contemplate, as the senator clearly recognizes, banishing the negro just to get rid of him. If he would consent to go among people of his own kind upon land suitable for his needs and by the subsidy of this government and the governments that owe it so heavily he might find satisfaction for the demands of his spirit and America, by filling his shoes with Nordics, would certainly be improving its own condition.

STATUES AND TOMBSTONES

The President has confided to his inner circle of political friends, who immediately spread the news, that those criticizing his leap into the European arena have given so much aid and comfort to what he calls the "enemy" as will secure for them statues in Berlin and Rome.

Why do statesmen forever think of statues? Cannot they seriously view the future without seeing in their minds eye a marble figure at every crossroads in the country?

Perhaps they see a bust of themselves in the hushed corridors of Westminster Abbey or a tablet placed near Napoleon's tomb where everyone stands in hatless awe. Our ambassador to Britain during the World war was rewarded by receiving a deathless tribute in that eternal hall of Britain's gratitude and the name of our ambassador to France has been preserved in enduring stone at Paris. No one can ever deny that Britain and France are grateful, particularly to Americans who see British and French interests ahead of their own country's.

So let us stand by Mr. Roosevelt's side and as these great plans of international grandeur rise among the vistas along the Potomac we may view the noble pieces of statuary erected to commemorate the slaughter, towering obelisks that pierce the sky or Greek columns supporting graceful buildings. For such is glory.

But when it is time to inspect those interminable rows upon rows of tombstones in countless military cemeteries it were better to turn the back and walk apart in gardens cool for there is written merely the story of the high courage of those who sacrificed their all to make a glorious page in history for men who may not have had a single speck of glory about them.

It is difficult to have an attractive piece of war statuary without a hundred thousand tombstones, cold, gray, and unadorned, to support it.

MR. HULL AND A FRACAS IN BUCHANAN

Secretary Hull breathed in of sulphur and out of flame before the Red Cross by adopting the German and Italian method of justifying action.

It seems, according to Mr. Hull, that we are going to Europe in case of a war to protect ourselves from attack. We gather from the belligerent tone of Mr. Hull's utterance that the Germans have already sunk a pair of our merchant ships and the Italians already shelled New York. Anyway we are under attack, have been attacked and are in danger of further attack. And we must go to war in self-defense.

We have never yet read about a single war that wasn't in self-defense. In 1914 the Germans raped Belgium so as to prevent the Belgian army from attacking Berlin. And the Russians invaded East Prussia to stop the Germans from burning Moscow. Italy stood aside for quite a while but finally loosened her army in a mighty attack lest the Austrian army, pushed back upon its heels in the East, might turn upon Italy just to beat somebody.

The alibi of self-defense is as ancient as mankind. But its story is more ludicrous. We have evidences of it in our courtrooms every day. Perhaps we might make Mr. Hull feel even more secure if we were to send him the records made in the long ago when the northern part of the county and the southern part of Brown clashed on frequent Sundays. We have no desire to be personal but the quarrel, at least for the sake of the example, may be limited to Hollandtown and Buchanan. Everything went well until church was over. And then someone attacked someone else. Those brought to court were quick to plead guilty if no great damage had been done, but when, occasionally, some ribs were broken, a finger bitten off or a face forever marred, self-defense was the plea and the jury was required to determine how such an astonishing fight could have started among people all of whom were so peacefully inclined and none of whom started it.

The fact that Mr. Hull is warning nations so far away that America will fight in defense of its property and rights and to repel any attack upon its sacred government shows the extent to which Red Eye has been consumed by the administration.

We wonder, sometimes, whether our administration and some of its declarations sound as ludicrous to the German people as the clap-trap of Hitler, Goering and Goebbels sound to us.

The queerest kind of a gink was on the witness stand before a congressional committee recently. And congressional committees are accustomed to viewing and listening to rare and novel people.

The unusual one to whom we refer is Benjamin, a high official with the Workers' Alliance who without beating around the bush, hemming or hawing, or looking for an alibi or a run-out admitted that he was a Communist, is a Communist and had been a Communist for a long period of years.

And the funny part of it is that he didn't tell anything about his recent conversion to the Catholic Church. He said nary a word about his disapproval of force and violence. He expressed no opinion that Communists were affectionate liberals in the great parade now led by the Pied Piper of Hyde Park and, more important than all, he didn't claim that Washington was a Communist, nor Jefferson, nor Lincoln.

So at last we have found a Red who occupies a serious and important position who has rejected the Trojan Horse principle so recently enunciated by Moscow whereby all Reds eschew and denounce violence, court and support the church and uphold a free press, free speech and free religion against the dark and damp cells of Lubianka prison.

Hail to this honest Red!

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—It is the same with everyone else, I suppose—the association of places with events or emotions. For instance:

Whenever I hear mention of a pass through Van Cortlandt Park, there comes a fleeting memory of Vivian Gordon, the flamboyant vampire of Broadway whose garroted body was found there. Strange that one of the beauty spots of New York should be memorable mainly for murder!

Madison Square Garden, for some unaccountable reason, always makes me think of Jimmy Walker, probably because my first sight of him was at a fight there. George M. Cohan always stirs the sleeping memory of my Uncle Neil who named his daughter Mary after a Cohan song; and Frank (Bring 'em Back Alive) Buck sends memory rolling back to a hotel on Chicago's North Side which once was pointed out to me as the place where he once was an elevator boy.

Washington Square invariably makes me think of O. Henry and sends me home to read him over. The recent time Riker's Island sends the shivers up the back because of the stories that have been told of its thousands of rats. I can't pass through Forest Hills either by subway or motor without thinking of tennis. Eleventh Avenue is registered forever in my mind as a second floor, foul-smelling, smoke-thick dive with sailors fighting furiously and ancient hags, paint streaking their hollow, leathery cheeks, swaying against the bar and cackling mad laughter.

Times Square means not so much the heart of Manhattan as a place where one can buy papers from his home town, Broome Street is reminiscent always of a restaurant—which isn't there any more. Coogan's Bluff is always the Polo Grounds; but if you speak of Yankee Stadium I will think first not of baseball but of the best beefsteak I ever ate in New York—a little place popular with ballplayers and sports writers near the stadium.

Mention Brooklyn and I think not of bridges or churches but of the view of the lower bay from the Bossert's Marine Roof. And if anyone speaks of doctors—human or horse—I think of my high blood pressure.

Memory is a beautiful thing. A letter from Duluth, Minn., revives dozens of them for me, and surely for you, too. It says:

"Did you ever—

"Hook bullfrogs along a muddy bank?"

"Pick spring flowers along a hot, dusty railroad track?"

"Go with the meat man's kids to the old slaughter house on the river bank and watch them make cracklins? (Yes, but mostly I remember how I watched the butcher tie a steer tightly with his head between a door. Then the man spat on his hands and picked up an ax which he swung with crushing force, striking the steer squarely between the eyes. The beast strained at the ropes, and then was dead. I never want to see such a thing again.)

"Drive through the apple orchard with barrels of water for the hogs?"

"Attend box supper?" (Sure, and get my girl to tip me off as to which box was hers so I would buy the right one!)

"Roast potatoes in the open?"

"Listen to pond frogs next to the cemetery when night was close?"

"Hear the tinkle of a far-away piano on a still, hot night as only a prairie town knows?"

"Lie on a rock in the middle of a wheat field and watch the wind blow the grain like the waves of the sea?"

If only life itself were as beautiful as memory is!

MY YESTERDAY

Fell a-tinkering with a clock which had stopped, and sure I could fix it; but finished with a mess of machinery scattered around and at a complete loss as to what to do thereafter; so threw everything away and bought a new one, but couldn't get the oil and grease off my hands. To really fix in Radio City for a mailing but the masseur who becomes more of a ruffian each time he kneads me; thence to the Rivoli to see the sweet Merle Oberon emote in "Wuthering Heights"; and afterwards to sit on the East 53rd Street pier and sun myself among the baby carriages, old folks and dogs congregated there. In the evening to "The Flashing Stream," one of those British plays full of words but not too much action.

10 YEARS AGO

Thursday, April 25, 1929

A more complete and extensive mail service was assured Appleton residents as a result of the inspection made the latter part of March by federal officials. Four new men were to be employed and two deliveries a day were assured for a large portion of Appleton.

Charles S. Boyd, president of the Appleton Coated Paper company, had purchased a 123-foot tract of land on S. Bayshore drive at Miami, Fla., on which he was to build a winter home.

Mrs. H. K. Pratt, Mrs. August Brandt, Mrs. A. W. Markham and John Jarchow won prizes at the open card party given by Pythian Sisters Wednesday night at Castle hall. Mrs. John Jarchow was chairman of the arrangements committee.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, April 30, 1914

A Holstein calf was born the previous Wednesday on the farm of Will Tretin in the town of Liberty that tipped the scales at 16 pounds and measured 12 inches high. The midget animal was perfectly formed and was expected to live.

One of the city street cars failed to make the curve at the car burns on Lake street when it was being taken out that morning and ran onto the sidewalk in front of Campbell's tavern. There was no damage.

When the Wolf Shoe company opened for business in the old Kamps estate building, two doors west of the present location, in July, it was to occupy the longest store in the city. Work was started that week on an addition to the building which was previously occupied by the People's Clothing company.

Spicy pinks, old-fashioned Phlox and golden glow.

I shall fill an old stump As you used to do With the pale moss roses That remember you.

You were fond of sunflowers And of mignonette, Purple morning-glories And the violet.

Hummingbirds were neighbors; Butterflies drew near. Loving your bright garden, Coming without fear.

When I plant my garden, And I see their wings Gleaming in a morning Filled with whispering,

I shall know you sent them From your loving heart To make glad my garden Should the quick tears start.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — It is more than six months since Munich and not a solitary plane has been ordered under the new rearmament program, and it will be Munich-time again in the fall before more than a handful are delivered.

Such is the speed with which democracy rears. In war time we would do it faster. How much faster is probable — but at least a little. In peace time, even in days of emergency, we won't be pushed.

The President only recently signed the bill authorizing the construction program which will bring the Army air fleet to a top strength of 6,000 planes. More than a week elapsed before final touches could be put on the appropriation bill making money available for letting contracts.

Munich was in late September. In early October the President told a press conference that the country must put more planes in the air. Then elapsed three months. Congress did not meet until Jan. 3.

Action Behind Scenes

On the surface rearmament appeared to be at a standstill. Back of the scenes during these three months the War Department was getting airplane makers ready for bigger production. It was not noised about but every manufacturer making planes for the Army was told to be ready to double or even quadruple the size of the order he had. If he had a contract in 1938 to build 13 planes, he was to be ready in 1939 to turn out perhaps 50 of the same kind.

But no factory manager could go ahead on the strength of that and fill his shop with completed planes depending on the Government to buy them. The Army can't promise to buy until it has the money in hand.

January 12 the President sent a special message to Congress asking $25,000,000 for increased armament, about half of it to be spent within a year, mostly for planes. He wanted $50,000,000 at once in order to correct the present lag in aircraft production due to idle plants. A half dozen plants, large and small, were almost idle.

Congress insists on studying these matters. Hearings in the House began January 17 but the bill authorizing 6,000 planes and other air expansion took until April 3 passing through Congress and getting the President's signature.

Even then no money was available, not even the $50,000,000. This "rush money" was carried in the regular War Department appropriation bill which did not course through Congress until mid-April, seven months after Munich. The remaining $25,000,000 which the Army expects to spend during the next year probably won't be ready until late June.

Until the money was appropriated it was impossible to order even one new airplane. In March the War Department started the ball rolling by asking bids to be submitted early in July on several types of planes. Contracts probably cannot be awarded until in August. Actual building will begin after that.

Other Difficulties

Other troubles have arisen. There is no assurance that the idle plants now waiting for jobs will get any contracts. They may fail to bid low enough, or they may submit unacceptable models. A few years ago the department would have given them contracts regardless, just to keep them busy. But early in this administration the air corps was submitted to a shaking congressional investigation for "allotting" planes in this manner without the formality of competitive bidding. It doesn't want to get burned doing it now. Legislation has been introduced permitting it to be done legally. That will take time to get through.

So the $50,000,000 may not start any idle plants rolling immediately. The money may have to be spent buying extra planes from plants already having Army orders from last year.

When the thing really begins humming sometimes in 1940 we will begin knocking planes out at a rate of several hundred a month. During the past several years we have averaged less than 400 military planes a year.

I never thought I'd live to see the day they'd have a fashion show and parade for men. But they had one out here in Hollywood last week showing all the new styles the men would wear this spring. Some of them sport coats they showed were certainly gay. It was the first time I ever saw a rainbow with buttons. Out here if a fella doesn't have 20 or 30 suits and 40 or 50 sport coats with slacks to match he's pret'near considered a nudist.

Grandpaw Snazzy went back home with one of them jazz suits and he says to my Aunt Boo, "Do you think the girls will like me in my new suit?"

And Aunt Boo says, "I don't know about the girls, but you'll sure drive the crowd crazy."

Things were sure different in the old days. A tourist said to Grandpaw Snazzy one time, "Those trousers of yours seem to be on their last legs, Grandpaw."

Madison—To understand the current talk about a LaFollette-Democratic rapprochement to re-elect Senator

Bob next year it is helpful to remember the P r o g r e s s i v e s state of mind after the turns had come in last November 8.

The beating suffered by the LaFollette following that day—all the more punishing because it was unexpected—brought gloom to the inner circle of the Progressive party. The blow was crushing, disorienting. At least four years would be needed, the inner moguls reasoned, to rebuild for a state come-back. But Senator Bob must be re-elected in 1940.

That there was alarm on that score was apparent immediately; nor was there any attempt at hiding the fact.

New Deal believers in Wisconsin promptly caught on; gossip began. It is even likely that the venetian Mr. Cowley engaged in a little political exploration. At any rate the belief is firmly established in most places now that the Progressives and Democrats in the state, at least the liberals of the latter group, will be in there pitching together in the summer of 1940.

Coincidentally has grown up the belief in some circles that LaFollette will leave the Progressive party to stand for reelection as a new Deal Democrat.

This column feels able to report, on the basis of authoritative reports from highest Progressive circles, that such a possibility is at best only remote. So remote is it that it should not be considered in contemplating the position of the LaFollette candidacy for reelection.

There are several reasons. First, probably, is the fact that the LaFollette is tremendously proud of their party, even in its present state. Third parties are easy to found, but hard to nurture and bring to maturity. The LaFollette family has done it pretty successfully, and it is unlikely that their proudest possession will be thrown overboard at the size of stress.

Second, and related to the first, is the LaFollette temperament. Those who know the scions of the state's most prominent political family know that they like their position on the national political stage. That position would be sacrificed largely, and their twin stars would lose their brilliance, were they to join one of the old parties again.

It was only after long cogitation that the break from the Republican party was made, only after the Progressive brain masters decided that it was hopeless to try to "bore from within" to a position of dominance in one of the old parties. They aren't likely to chuck everything they have established since that time to return to what will be at the most a standing equivalent to the one they surrendered when they left the G.O.P. in 1924.

Another very good reason, in the opinion of this reporter and others, is that such a step won't be necessary. A fusion can be arranged with the Democrats on better terms, if only because the Progressives' record following is considerably larger, probably twice as large, as that which the Democrats would bring to the alliance. Best way to bid for the Democrats, many observers and politicians alike feel, would be to give them a chance to win the governorship.

A long shot, mister—These pants have two sons, and three grand-sons to go yet."

Progressives are Getting on Each Other's Nerves

Minority Whip, Lady-smith Senator Get Into Wrangle at Madison

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Progressive senators who have been fighting Republican and Democratic foes with a will all during the current session of the legislature this week began getting on each other's nerves. Administration supporters this week enjoyed the spectacle of an acrimonious wrangle between Senator Mike Kresky of Green Bay, minority whip, and Joseph McDermid of Ladysmith, a Progressive who has angered his mates lately because of his defection on major questions. It all started last week when McDermid left his Progressive colleagues to vote for, and to defend, the administration's labor legislation program, which Kresky has denounced until his voice is hoarse. In his rebuke to McDermid, he inferentially charged the latter with log-rolling, forbidden by statute. The Chinese, Kresky related, have the comfortable custom of scratching each other's backs. Legislators sometimes do likewise, he pointed out.

McDermid waited over the weekend, and until yesterday for an apology from the "gentleman from the second district" (Kresky) he said.

Then he arose in the senate on a point of personal privilege and coldly demanded an explanation from the acid-tongued Green Bay solon.

Kresky had reflected on his character and his personal integrity, he charged angrily.

"When one senator directly accuses another I feel that it is time for the senate body to take action," he cried.

"I am sorry for a man who cannot present his argument without indulging in personalities. I waited after the accusation was made to see whether this man wouldn't see that he had acted somewhat hastily."

"I am going to ask whether the senator cares to make a statement. If not I am going to take further action."

Kresky arose to say that he was "amazed and somewhat amused at the implication of a threat" by McDermid.

If McDermid would restate his version of Kresky's alleged accusation in the presence of a stenographer, he said, he would discuss the question further.

The senate went on to other business, and McDermid was unable to regain the floor to continue the matter at the session.

Wisconsin's Health

BY C. A. HARPER
State Health Officer

Back in 1928, Congress designated May 1 as an annual day of child health and welfare observance, and the movement has accomplished a good deal since then.

In the realization that a large element among our child population is born under conditions not conducive to health and happiness and has to struggle through childhood against odds that are downright cruel, our nation sets May 1 aside for having a look at what we are doing about it.

It would be comforting to believe that Wisconsin's great agricultural and dairy resources mean that no child in the state goes undernourished, but such is not the case.

It would be great to feel that every expectant mother in the state is informed on the fundamentals of prenatal care and is receiving medical advice, but this is a long way from the truth. The state board of health has a series of nine monthly letters of instruction for the expectant mother, but needs further help from the people of the state in placing it in the hands of thousands of young matrons who need it most from year to year.

Comparatively, Wisconsin has done well along the lines of maternal and child care. The records of 1937, latest year for which nationwide figures are available, show Wisconsin tied for fifth place among the states in point of low maternal mortality, and in 10th place for low infant mortality, and indications are that our 1938 standings will be still more favorable.

Such standings are not achieved by accident. In Wisconsin they are the reward of years of patient and expanding effort on the part of many agencies to raise the level of conditions on which maternal and child health hinge.

Garner's Silence Leaves Him Free to be Offered in Any Role

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Washington—The candidate who talks all the time doesn't have nearly the advantage that is enjoyed by the noiseless runner like Jack Garner. The vice president has scarcely spoken above a whisper since 1936, when he accepted renomination on the ticket with Roosevelt. From that day to this, his public commitments have consisted of nothing more than an occasional betting of his celebrated eyebrows. That has left him free to be offered to the country in any role—or all of them, which is more like it at the moment.

Within the last year Garner has acquired a reputation as the hero of the anti-Roosevelt Democrats. They slip in and out of his office. When any of them wishes to take a pot shot at the administration, it usually is slyly hinted that some of the credit really ought to go to Garner.

Only a few days ago, Garner's reputation as an anti-Roosevelt man brought him a clean bill of health from the Republican National committee for Texas, R. B. Creager. Speaking at a luncheon of businessmen in Dallas, Creager said that while he thought Roosevelt would run for a third term, he wanted to say and nominate Garner, it would be all right with him.

"I agree with him in all his fundamental beliefs," said this veteran conservative Republican. "I feel the country would be safe either way the election went, with Garner and a conservative Republican nominated, and I might be compelled to go fishing on election day."

That was an overstrong dose that couldn't do Garner any good where he needed it. A few more endorsements like that and he could kiss his chances goodbye.

Giving Comfort to Foes of Administration
So the word has been put around Washington that Garner isn't undermining Roosevelt. It was stated that he had refused to become the leader of the anti-Roosevelt senators. He wanted to keep hands off in the fight between Roosevelt and conservative Democrats in congress.

That Garner has been giving aid and comfort to anti-administration senators has been understood around Washington for months. But now there is a desire to get out from under that impression, particularly since Roosevelt, a few days ago, fired another volley at conservative Democrats.

In his message to the young Democrats, Roosevelt said the Democratic party would commit suicide by abandoning the policies which brought it into power. He said he was certain the country would spurn an ersatz (or substitute) Republican in the form of a conservative Democrat. If the country wants a conservative, Roosevelt said, it will go to the Republican party to find him, not to the Democrats.

Poll Shows Garner Is Leading Possibility
The picture of Garner as the conservative anti-New Dealer, which now is generally held by the country, makes an odd contrast to that which Garner left by his speech in accepting the 1936 vice presidential nomination at Philadelphia when he said:

"In Franklin Delano Roosevelt the hopes of the nation have been reborn. Despair has given way to confidence. Despondency and gloom have made way for happiness. There must be no return to the old conceptions denominated as the old deal. Franklin Delano Roosevelt is my leader, my commander-in-chief. In this presence, before this multitude and with the stars of heaven to bear witness to my covenant, I renew the pledge of fealty I gave four years ago."

Recently a private poll was taken. It showed Garner leading among Democratic possibilities. The ballots were mailed out with a letter which described Garner as the "stalwart Texan who has fought the New Deal battles shoulder to shoulder with the president but who lately, if we are to believe the comment, thinks some of the policies like spending, etc., should be slowed down."

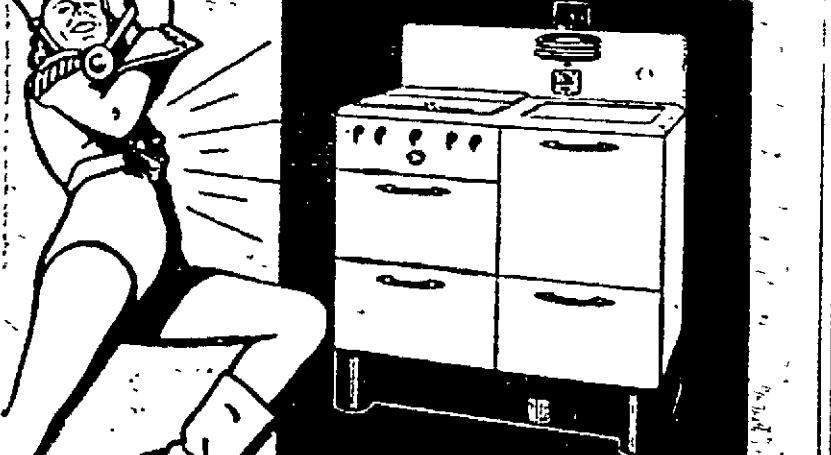

This poll, it is understood, was taken by friends of Garner so that the question must describe him as he would like to appear to the voters.

Mr. Bigford will continue his headquarters at Oshkosh. Outagamie county will be under the supervision of E. T. Sullivan of Green Bay.

PEWTER WARE HOBBYIST. IN BASEMENT WORKSHOP

A glimpse into the workshop of Mrs. Willard J. Schenck, above, in the basement of her home at 274 River drive, reveals the inside workings of an interesting and attractive hobby, that of designing and making pewter ware by hand. Mrs. Schenck is shown at work on a handled covered dish which she shapes in a wood mold with an oak mallet covered at the ends with leather. Grouped around her on the work table are some of her completed articles, among them a waffle pitcher with a hollow handle, a pair of candelabra, cream soup bowls with spoons and plates, a serving tray and a vase with a cast neck. The waffle pitcher was made from seven pieces of pewter soldered together. The pieces are cut from a sheet of metal according to a pattern just as a dress is cut from cloth. Mrs. Schenck makes her own patterns. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Appleton Woman's Hobby Is Making Her Own Pewter Ware

A HOBBY begun about 10 years ago when she lived in Madison has sustained the interest of Mrs. Willard J. Schenck, 274 River drive, who now has between 50 and 60 pieces of pewter which she has made herself. Her collection which is the envy of all who see it includes a humidor in relief work, a sandwich tray, a desk box with acid etched design on the top, and 18-inch serving tray, a fruit bowl with handles and base, card table markers, candy bowls, etched ash trays, porringers, initialed napkin rings, a tall case with cast neck, eight handled cream soup bowls with spoons and plates, a waffle pitcher with hollow handles, a pair of candelabra with three holders on each.

Mrs. Schenck makes her own molds for casting, and the soldering is done with a blow pipe attached to a gas jet and controlled by the amount of pressure she blows into it. The sawing is done with a jeweler's saw, and the hammering with oak mallets covered at the tips with leather to prevent denting the metal. The molds used in shaping bowls are made by a wood manufacturing company, and with a set of six molds Mrs. Schenck states that it is possible to make any number of different shaped bowls.

One of a group of women whose husbands were professors at the University of Wisconsin, 10 years ago, Mrs. Schenck enrolled in a course in pewter work at the Madison vocational school and learned how to fashion the metal into the various articles. Nearly all of her work is done in the winter time, as the basement where she has her workshop must be warm and dry since the solder will not flow in a damp atmosphere.

Mrs. Schenck has displayed her pewter collection at hobby shows and other exhibitions, and has been asked to teach class on pewter work at the Green Bay vocational school for next year.

'Peter Pan' Is Story Built For Children

"ALTHOUGH writing children's literature is considered a profitable field by many hack writers today, no enduring children's stories have been created unless they were inspired by real children and recorded with the intuition and sympathy that spring from genuine love for children." These words of the late Mrs. George Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Barrett, route 1, Menasha, became the bride of Harold W. Forster, son of Mrs. Theresa Forster, 311 S. # American Indian Lore

BY PHEBE JEWELL NICHOLS
(Mrs. A. F. Lookaround)

The third of the four essentials of the Indian's ethos is his idea of the significance of animal life. This idea comes in part from the native concept of totemic origin, i. e.; that animals were created before men and 'having' admitted the Great Spirit who had the stature of a man, asked to be transformed that they might have the bodies of men. As we have stated before, this belief has in it all the germs of the theory of evolution expressed with a naive clarity which calmly passes over the required millions of years of gradual development. Consequently, the native Indian regarded animals with a kind of fraternal awe which conceded them a sort of priority claim upon the earth while still placing them on a lower plane than man, a plane to which they had been voluntarily relegated by the creation of mankind. Only with this knowledge of the Indian's curious and somewhat paradoxical attitude toward animals can one hope to understand in the slightest degree the Indian's feeling about these lower forms of life.

Indians substituted chiefly by hunting and fishing. They had to reconcile the necessary killing with their ever-dominant religious ideas. They did it in this fashion: The Great Spirit had ordained man as the highest form of life and other creatures subservient to him. Part of this subservience meant that they were to serve as food for man. Because these creatures emanated from the same divine source as man, man's partaking of their flesh would transfer to him their strength and virtues. Since they had been given the breath of life by that same power which had made him, he regarded their capitulation as a gift and a favor for which he was grateful and which obligated him to 'never take more than he needed.' Therefore, hunting and fishing expeditions were preceded by a ceremony of considerable religious bearing.

Ask Bear's Help

Since it is typically Algonquian, therefore culturally Menominee, though specifically Ojibwa, we quote from Wisconsin Historical Collections Vol. 1, p. 125 a description of the indigenous Ojibwa custom of hunting bear in winter: "The chief Medicine Man sits in the middle of the lodge, with some broadcloth and calico (hunting bundle) coverings in this case) spread out before him, together with a stuffed bear cub skin, while his pipe or calumet is placed before him on two crossed sticks. He recites from boards with hieroglyphs upon them and passes these boards on to the Indian singers about him; 'O, my brother, we are very hungry. We are on the point of starving and I wish you to have pity on us and tomorrow when the young men go out to hunt you, I want you to show yourself. I know very well that you are concealed close by my camp here. I give you my pipe to smoke out of and I wish you to have pity on us and give us your body that we may eat and not starve.' The ceremony continued with repetitions of this song, the beating of drums and the heavy loping bear dance, finally with all the hunters smoking the calumet. They had polluted the bear spirit. Tomorrow they would go on the hunt, consistently and conscience-clear.

The Indian's kindness to animals is a well known fact. The Indian's house dog and cat as well as his hunting dogs are always fed as long as there is food for any one. Warm snug dog houses are built; when the homes are built. It is customary nowadays to see beside Indian log cabins a neat little cabin for the dogs. In older times, the dog had his place near the fire. Katharine Pinkerton, in her recent book, "Wilderness Wife," tells a folksy and humorous tale of a bear cub which had been cared for by an Indian couple and became such a pet that when it grew to huge proportions and took up too much room in the small abode and ate up all the food, the Indians still could not bear to kill it. Dr. William Denham, writing of his adventures in Bolivia as an airplane pilot for a mining company renewing operations in a twelfth century Inca gold mine, tells of how much the native Chianna Indians thought of their mules and llamas; they counted them along with the family when the census was taken. There are, in Indian folk lore, innumerable stories about animals and their faithfulness to man and man's devotion to them. We shall relate some of these in a later column.

Question: What is the Indians' idea of conservation?

Answer: The real Indian is a true conservationist. He does not consider that the human has any right to take the life of wild creatures except when these creatures are a menace to human safety or needed for food. He is not bloodthirsty or careless or wasteful. He does not believe in artificial feeding of wild life, or in protecting these creatures, so that there will be more to kill. His name for this is slaughter. He does not believe in disturbing nature's cycles. He has always viewed with amazement and considerable contempt the white man's idea of sportsmanship.

Indians Unimpressed

The writer had the opportunity to watch the reaction of some Indians who were taken to view some finely mounted animal heads in the trophy room of a big game hunter. When asked if one of the heads was not a 'very fine specimen,' one of the Indians said, looking up at the shaggy antlered moose head, 'Well—he had his right to live.' In this trophy room where heads of water buffalo, elk, deer, antelope and other wild creatures hung from the wall and adorned the mantelpiece and tiger and bear skins covered the floor, the Indians were obviously unimpressed by and unenthusiastic about the 'kill.' Observing this lack of elation, someone said, "I thought Indians were fond of hunting." The Indians laughed a little embarrassedly and one of them replied, "Yes—we do like to hunt, but it is for food, what we need." These Indians did not want to be rude to their host, but it was apparent that they were uncomfortable in that room because of evidence of death to animals. That these trophies had been obtained in the interest of science seemed to them a little beside the point. The display seemed to the Indians not only unsportsmanlike but in very bad taste. They have the same feeling about the deer hunting season as it is observed in this state. They do not consider it praiseworthy that six or seven hundred deer can be counted on the running boards of cars passing a given point at the end of the season.

tion and also an appropriation of $123,000,000 for the farm security administration. He asked that unexpended funds remaining to these agencies be carried over into the next year.

In addition, the president asked $25,650,000 for administrative expenses of several government agencies in connection with carrying phases of the relief program. This would be divided as follows: Civil aeronautics authority $250,000, general accounting office $5,225,000, treasury department $14,925,000 and United States Employees Compensation commission $5,250,000.

Other funds

He also recommended appropriations of $1,500,000 for the national emergency council, $990,000 for the national resources committee, and $100,000 for the Puerto Rico Reconstruction administration.

"The system which we have favored in the United States during the past six years is by no means perfect. It can be improved but not at the expense of substituting the dole for work relief nor by turning the management of works projects back to the sole care of the many thousands of local governments. It will be said by history, after much political smoke has cleared away, that the federal government's handling of work relief has been one of our most efficient administrative accomplishments."

Judge William F. Shaugnessy in circuit court at Milwaukee yesterday disagreed with Edward Moritz, Randall street, that it was all right for him to supply beer for his schalkopf playing companions and not pay his back alimony and sentenced him to four months in the Milwaukee county jail for contempt.

Moritz, once his divorced wife, Mary Milwaukee, $367 in back alimony and support money. She complained that he supplied his cronies at Appleton with beer when they played sheephead and when questioned by the judge whether it was true Moritz replied:

"Sure, gosh, can't a fellow supply a few drinks?"

Second Post-Crescent Letter Series to Have War as Topic

Do you believe America is headed for war? If so, what are your reasons? If you do not think the United States will become involved in a war upon what do you base this attitude?

The Post-Crescent has chosen the "war scare" for its second series of letters from readers. The letters which the Post-Crescent considers the best written, most logical, and most credible will earn $1 for the writers.

Letters must not be more than 400 words in length. Sound reasoning and terse writing are the requisites for turning out a winning letter on this subject.

If you honestly think the nation will become embroiled in a war, say just that and present your reasons for so thinking.

If you feel we are unnecessarily alarmed and that war is not at all probable, then that is the stand to take in your letter.

The names of the writers will not be printed, a practice which was observed in the first letter series on driving which was printed recently in the Post-Crescent.

Only letters earning $1 for the writers will be printed. Address them to "Letter Editor, Post-Crescent."

ver of various units in France, including service as chief of staff for the Eighth Army corps.

By direction of congress and by the force of military developments it was apparent that the army's immediate work will be concentrated on airplanes.

Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, signed contracts totaling more than $50,000,000 yesterday shortly after Mr. Roosevelt made funds available by approving a $549,000,000 war department supply bill.

To save months of delay, congress provided that the first plans might be ordered without awaiting the bulk of the next fiscal year. The bulk of the contracts, however, will be placed after July 1. Funds have yet to be voted.

Ready for Action

Keyed to a new tempo in keeping with fast moving developments, army officials and manufacturers got preliminaries out of the way while waiting for congress to act.

The actual beginning of the air corps expansion coincided with disclosure by Secretary Woodring of plans to retire the over-age and physically unfit from among the army's 12,500 officers.

Announcing a "rigorous vitalization," Woodring said congress would be asked to authorize retirement of officers from captain to brigadier general considered too old for their grades. He did not disclose the proposed age limits or estimate the number of officers to be weeded out.

Special medical boards will put all officers of captain or higher ranks through rigid physical examinations before June 30. Woodring said state governors would be asked to decree the same tests for the national guard.

Officers Praise Move

Without regard to their own personal fortunes, many officers were quick to praise the move.

Its effect, they explained, will be to eliminate a "hump" in army promotion lists resulting from admission to the regular army of thousands of officers originally trained only for World war duty.

The navy, too, contemplated changes in its promotion system. The house passed yesterday legislation to hold in active service between 250 and 300 naval officers who otherwise would be forced to retire before June 30, 1944.

It also approved a bill to permit aviation cadets to serve for seven years after graduation from the naval training station at Pensacola, Fla., instead of three years as at present.

The house adopted an amendment which would permit a commanding officer of the fleet and the chief of naval operations to serve until the age of 66 instead of retiring at 64, as existing law requires. Representatives Vinson (D-Ga.) said this would apply to Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, who was scheduled for retirement soon.

Legislation Incomplete

Actual start of the air corps expansion found much of the administration's defense legislation still awaiting final congressional action.

Mr. Roosevelt has approved a $358,000,000 measure authorizing the general air corps expansion, $32,500,000 for "educational" orders for munitions, reinforcement of the Panama canal, and a 2,000 increase in army officers, but funds still must be voted. To start work on 12 new naval air bases, the president yesterday asked $31,621,000. It will be added to the regular annual military department appropriation bill, still before a house committee, swelling it to a new record peacetime total of some $800,000,000.

Other pending defense measures included:

A $160,000,000 deficiency bill, carrying $110,000,000 for guns and other munitions.

The civil aeronautics authority's plan to train 20,000 pilots annually in colleges.

A bill authorizing storing of strategic minerals. The senate favored spending $40,000,000, the house $100,000,000, over a four-year period. It must be implemented by appropriations which Mr. Roosevelt said must not exceed $10,000,000 a year.

would not be introduced in peacetime, Chamberlain said.

"On those two occasions (when he opposed conscription), conditions were very different from what they are today. On neither was war imminent and there was no question present to the minds of anybody at that time which appeared then likely to lead to war."

Chamberlain explained that the government had agreed to conscription because of independence pledges given recently to Poland, Greece, and Rumania.

He said doubts had been expressed that the British government "meant business" and "evidence has been accumulating rapidly during the past week that these doubts were increasing as we were increasing our engagements and the gibe that Britain was ready to fight from capital to capital."

Scores Lloyd George

The prime minister assailed David Lloyd George, war-time prime minister, who indicated through a question yesterday that he believed the government's conscription measure was not broad enough.

"I have noticed that it is the fixed practice of Mr. Lloyd George," Chamberlain said, "to belittle and pour contempt upon everything that this government is doing. The further in time the government gets from the period when he himself was prime minister, the worse it gets in his estimation."

The prime minister concluded with this pledge to the opposition: "In view of the government, if war ever did come again, we feel that taxes on the very wealthy, which are already very high, must be further and substantially increased."

"We feel that profiteering in wartime, wherever it can be established, should be subjected to severe penalties."

"We intend that a system shall be introduced to deal with all profits arising out of war and not merely profits out of armaments."

5 Former Buckman Employees Facing Federal Charges

Accused of Using Mails to Defraud, Violating Securities Act

Madison—W. McNeil Kennedy of Chicago, regional administrator of the securities and exchange commission, announced yesterday that five former employees of B. E. Buckman and Company, had been indicted by a federal grand jury in Milwaukee on charges of using the mails to defraud and violating the federal securities act.

Kennedy said the indictments covered 13 counts charging sales of securities of Tung Industries, Inc., through the Milwaukee Bond and Share corporation.

The five indicted, he said, were William A. Kenyon, Sidney R. Clark, Leon B. Smith and Arthur A. Aschauer, all of Milwaukee, and John W. Herron of Wausau, Wis.

Kenyon and Clark were president and sales manager, respectively, of the Milwaukee Bond and Share corporation. Herron was president of Tung Industries, Inc.

Charge Misrepresentation

Kennedy said these men formed Tung Industries and represented that it had tung groves under cultivation in Mississippi, and that proceeds of the securities would be used to acquire additional acreage and cultivate larger tung groves there.

Less than 10 per cent of the land owned by Tung Industries, the SEC official said, was planted with tung trees, none of them matured enough to bear nuts, while investors were told that all the land was planted with nut-bearing trees.

He added that only a small part of the revenue from securities sales was applied as represented, and that the corporation was misrepresented as operating profitably while it was insolvent and did not realize any profits.

Smith and Kenyon were convicted in circuit court here and sentenced to prison last year on a charge of violating the Wisconsin securities law, but the state supreme court reversed the conviction and freed them on the ground that short term notes of Tung Industries, Inc., were not securities within the definition of state law.

Believe Geiger's Court Will Escape Murphy 'Clean Up'

Department of Justice Still Concerned With Slowness, However

BY RUBY A. BLACK

Washington — While the department of justice is still concerned with the slowness of Judge F. A. Geiger's court, in the eastern district of Wisconsin, officials doubt that the Milwaukee judge is "on Attorney General Murphy's calendar" in his present campaign to clean up the courts.

His first attention is being given to what the attorney general calls certain judges' tendency to allow their work "to drift into the realm of politics and patronage" rather than to specific cases of inefficiency, it was said.

In addressing the Associated Press in New York city on Monday, the attorney general called attention to two main troubles with the federal courts:

First, their failure to achieve efficiency in their work, and second, a tendency to allow that work to drift into the realm of politics and patronage.

Inefficiency Evident

"The first of these weaknesses, inefficiency, is painfully evident in the congested condition of court dockets and the almost complete absence of coordination in the work of the entire federal judicial system."

While the department does not have detailed records of the status of Judge Geiger's court, it points out that, at the request of President Judge Evan A. Evans of the circuit court, Judge Patrick Stone of the western Wisconsin district and a judge from the northern Illinois district have been called to the eastern Wisconsin district to help Judge Geiger, who is said to be seriously ill.

Judge Geiger has been eligible for retirement at full pay for some time, being 71 years old and having been on the federal bench 27 years.

Officials here said they believed that there has been no term of the eastern district court in which the government could try civil cases for a year.

Complaints have also been received against Judge Geiger's refusal to hold sessions of court in some cities in which the law authorizes him to hold court, such as Green Bay.

Other "miscellaneous complaints" have been received, but it is believed that Attorney General Murphy is not planning to press for prompt action on the eastern Wisconsin district, pending completion of the "clean-up" in other districts.

Special Tribal Council Called

Menominees to Discuss Organization, Unemployment, Relief Measures

Keshena—Notices of a general tribal council to be held Wednesday, May 3 have been posted on the Menominee Indian Reservation by order of Ralph Fredenberg, Keshena agency superintendent. According to the notice, the council will discuss "Organization of tribe" and "Unemployment and relief measures."

The notice states that the meeting will be held as soon as possible because of "widespread excitement and dissatisfaction."

Discussion of relief measures is necessary because of the large volume of unemployment on the reservation, due to curtailment of activities as an economy measure. Undoubtedly the 9-point program of relief proposed by Fredenberg will come in for a share of the discussion.

The other subject relates to the advisory board, a group of 10 elected as district representatives. The board has been under fire of Ed Warrington, secretary of a newly-formed labor committee at Neopit which is protesting economy measures at the "expense of the common laboring man."

Optimism Prevails as Hour For Hitler Reply Approaches

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(AP)—Maybe it's just the spring weather that's responsible, but a fair amount of optimism seems to prevail among European statesmen and observers as we approach Friday and Herr Hitler's reply to President Roosevelt's peace appeal.

True, it's predicted generally that the Nazi leader will reject the president's proposal in its present form.

But in the major capitals on both sides of the controversy — Berlin, Rome, Paris and London — the feeling is rather widespread that Hitler may make some sort of counter-gesture which will open the way for peace parley.

Whatever attitude Herr Hitler may take, the present is accepted by many as the most favorable moment for peace discussions since the period prior to his success at the Munich conference.

Hitler has obtained all the territories he has indicated he wanted, excepting Danzig and maybe former German Silesia, in Poland. Danzig looks about ripe to fall into his basket, and negotiations might straighten out the Silesian affair.

Mussolini has annexed Albania, and has announced publicly that he can wait for satisfaction regarding his territorial claims against France.

Observers believe both England and France might be prepared to make concessions under friendly conditions.

Just now, also, we have the favorable development of the return of the British ambassador to Berlin after an absence generally accepted as a rebuke to Germany.

Stocks of Stores Are at Low Mark

Inventories Show Decline Of 6.7 Per Cent in Cost Value

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — Wisconsin's independent stores should be in the market for more stocks now, as their year-end inventories, reported to the United States department of commerce, show a decline of 6.7 per cent in cost value of inventories compared with the previous year-end value of stocks on hand.

Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins cites the reduction in inventories as one of the bright spots in business conditions.

As in the country as a whole, Wisconsin motor vehicle dealers led the drop in inventories, with 16.7 per cent.

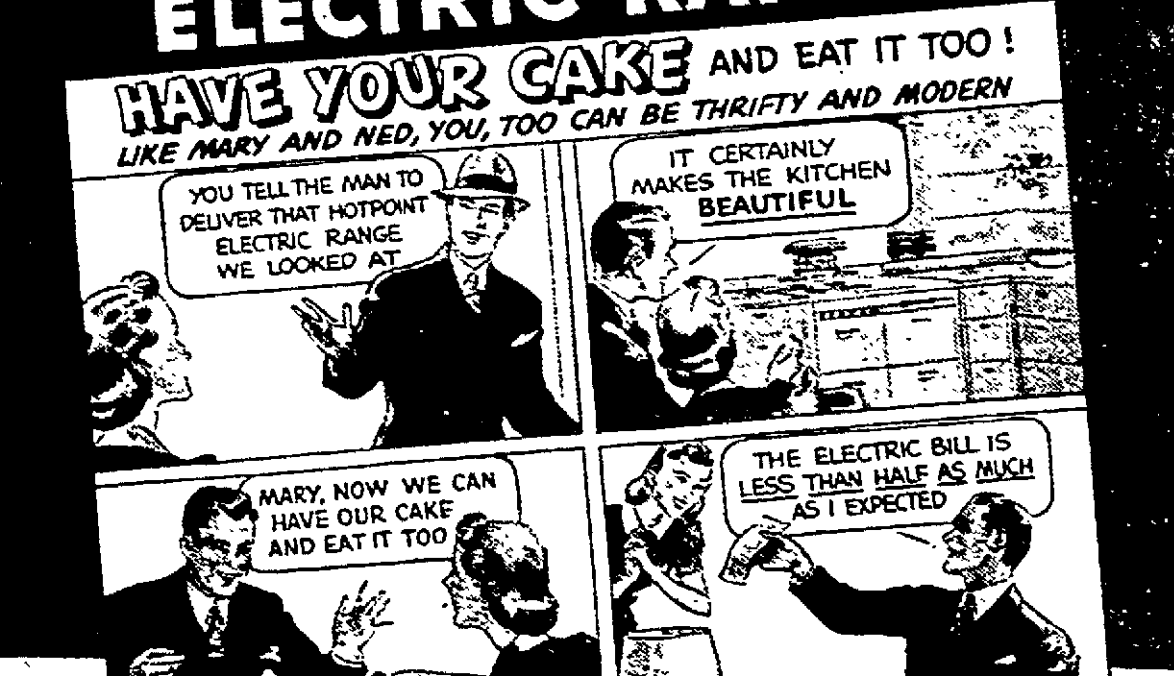

Men's and boy's clothing stores showed 14.9 per cent less stock on hand at the end of 1938 than they had at the end of 1937.

The drop in inventories of the apparel group was 10.7 per cent.

All classes of independent stores in Wisconsin, except restaurants, showed a decline in the cost value of their inventories. Household appliance dealers showed one of the large declines, 15.2 per cent, while furniture stores showed a drop of 1 per cent.

'Doubling by Ear' Seldom Good Policy

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Many of the penalty doubles that one hears in expert circles are based on the doubler's skepticism about the opponents' bidding rather than on intrinsic values in his own hand. This highly speculative type of doubling is popularly referred to as "doubling by ear."

When the ear is keen enough and the knowledge of the opponents' bidding habits accurate enough, excellent results may follow such doubles but woe betide them when they go wrong! Then overtricks in abundance are apt to be the harvest. In today's hand West fancied himself as an "ear doubler," but, judging from the results, I'm inclined to think he was deaf as a door post.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 diamond Pass 1 spade! Pass
2 clubs! Pass 3 no trump Double
Pass Pass Pass

Just in case many readers, after perusing the above bidding, think the composers and proofreaders have gone mad, I hasten to say that this actually was the bidding as it took place at one table of a recent duplicate. Obviously North-South were on a "psychic" spree. South's first response was, of course, intended as a two edged weapon. He wanted to keep the opponents from mentioning their likely spade suit and also hoped to stop a spade lead if he, as he planned, were to play the final contract in no trump. This is no staunch defense of South's tactics. I am merely acting as reporter in this case. North, as may be seen, went really "fancy" on his second turn at the auction. Instead of raising his partner's spade bid he tried to stop the club lead by mentioning the suit. Then, when South jumped to three no trump and West doubled, North must have sensed that his partner's spade bid had been phony and decided to gamble it out along the lines South had chosen.

Questionable as was the bidding of North-South, however, it is really West's double that must come in for derision. As West explained later, in a decidedly crestfallen tone, he had figured his own singleton diamond as portending a bad break in the suit, with probable stoppers in East's hand. Since he himself could hold off the spade and club suits (after a fashion) and as he had heart strength, he had decided to make a gambling double. He was "very sorry about the whole thing, but so forth and so on." All this explaining, however, unfortunately took place after the grinning declarer had raked in twelve tricks. West had opened his fourth-best heart and declarer had jumped on East's jack with a suppressed whoop, after which he had thumped and said: "Hold your hat, boys and get ready for an awful lot of discarding!" Whereupon he had led a low diamond toward dummy and, to West's unutterable horror, East had not only failed to follow suit but, when asked "No diamonds, partner?" had stoutly maintained that he was not revoking. Declarer threw his two remaining hearts on the ace and king of spades, and then actually could have taken all thirteen tricks, but (not unnaturally) decided to run the rest of his diamonds rather than risk the club finesse, and so ended up with the losing club queen in his hand. Ironically enough, it was East, the doubler's partner, who took the only trick that was taken by his side!

"Doubling by ear," or doubling simply because one has a hunch that the opponents are overboard, is by all odds the most delicate maneuver at the bridge table and, as such, requires judgment that amounts almost to a sixth sense. I recommend that all readers who cannot be sure that they possess that sense confine themselves to the more orthodox types of doubles in which they can count, or almost count, the "retting" tricks.

Mistake in Marriage Is One Of Hardest Errors to Rectify

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have been married five years and have a son 4 years old. All my married life I have helped my husband run his business and take care of his mother and father. I don't think my husband loves me, but I know he needs me in his business. I know now that I don't love him. I married at 17 and it was just a childish fancy that I have outgrown. I don't want to leave him, because it would change my baby's life, but must I pay the balance of my life for one mistake? I can't go home to my father because he has a house full of kids as it is. Besides, I don't want to depend on any one. Can't you think of some way to help me? Or must I go on paying and paying for marrying too young. S. L.

Answer:
Alas, not I, nor any one, can save you from the consequences of your childish folly. It has been said that we are punished more severely for our mistakes than we are for our sins. And that is tragically true in marriage. For so many lives are wrecked in marriage because a man and woman made an error in judgment in picking each other out for mates.

DOROTHY DIX
riage that are entered into in such good faith but that came to disaster because a man and woman made an error in judgment in picking each other out for mates.

Most of our other mistakes we can rectify to some extent, at least. We can settle our accounts and have done with it. But for our mistakes in marriage we must go on paying as long as we live. There are wrongs that we can never atone for. Cruelties that scar us to remember. Wounds that never heal. Romance and illusions torn into shreds. Little children's lives broken beyond all mending.

Such a bankrupting price for having made a mistake in marriage, made when one was befuddled by moonlight on a summer's night, or when one was so young one knew nothing of life, or the world, or one's own self, or what sort of a man or woman one would grow up into being, and had no standards by which to judge and tell a passing fancy from the grand passion!

You find no fault with your husband except that he isn't the right man for you and that he does not seem to love you, so perhaps you both made mistakes in marriage. But I do not think that you can correct the blunder by divorce. To do that you would have to break up your home and half-orphan your child and disrupt its life. You would have to go out into the world and try to earn a living, and that is a hard thing to do in these times.

So perhaps your last estate would be harder than your present one. You will be wise to do as so many other women do. Just accept your lot and make the best of it. Carry on with a smile on your lips while you pay and pay and pay for the mistake you made in marrying when you were 17.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a married man in my late fifties. We have no children. My wife and I have lived very happily together, but now a problem has arisen which is causing a lot of worry on my part. We have our own home and I am very much attached to it and I would like to be buried from it, not from a funeral parlor. My wife does not agree with me on this point, as she thinks the proper place to be buried from is a funeral home. Will you please let me know through your column whether you think that a husband's wishes should be carried out in this respect. I certainly feel that I am entitled to this last request.

WORRIED HUSBAND.

Answer:
I surely do think that your wife should respect your wishes and let you have your funeral wherever you please, but you have one comfort, and that is that you won't know anything about it if she carries out her own plans and carries you off to the funeral parlor.

What happens to our bodies after our souls have left them cannot matter to us, but it does matter greatly to a husband and wife who have lived together happily for many years to start quarreling over the funeral arrangements of one or the other, particularly when neither one knows which one is going to

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Culled from a reliable book on home beauty treatments is this oatmeal bag recipe to correct the external condition of a greasy skin. Those of you who are troubled with excessive facial perspiration may find great relief in a twelve day course of this skin treatment.

Make Them at Home
Make twelve small muslin bags and fill them with a tablespoonful of the following mixture; and tie them securely:
To one cupful of oatmeal add one-eighth of a teaspoonful of powdered sulphur (which you buy in a drug store), and one teaspoonful of finely shaved or grated pumice soap. Stir them together thoroughly.
Use one bag every evening for twelve consecutive days. Saturate it in warm water and rub the face until it is clean. Allow the liquid to dry on the skin and then rinse the face with warm water followed by cold water. Then apply the following lotion:
To one cupful of cold water add with an eye dropper, ten drops of tincture of plain benzoin. Leave this lotion on your skin over night and in the morning wash your face thoroughly with a stiffish sponge and plenty of cold water. Use a reliable astringent lotion as a foundation for your make-up.

This simple treatment should correct your oily skin condition. You should refrain from using any greasy cream on your skin, and several times a day you should douse your face with cold water. Never apply fresh make-up to your skin without first washing it.

Watch Your Diet
Those of you who do complain of either oily skin, or a combination dry-greasy skin, must watch your diet. Drink plenty of water between meals (not with meals) and refuse to eat starchy foods, sweets, rich desserts, fatty meats, Cocoa, chocolate, tea and coffee all affect your skin so do without them for the time being if you can.

The important thing is to keep your bowels moving freely and regularly. If you have constipation trouble send for my leaflet which gives you suggestions for correcting the condition, and "How to Cure a Blemished Skin" tells you of a simple daily treatment to banish blackheads and other minor blemishes.

With these two leaflets in hand you should have a prettier complexion come summer, and you will feel better to boot! Remember to enclose a fairly large envelope, addressed to yourself and bearing a three-cent stamp if you request the leaflets mentioned. Otherwise we cannot fill your request! Write me care of this paper.

School Marks Cause Great Deal of Worry, Confusion

BY ANGELO PATRI

John, a student in his first year of high school, handed his father his report card with a flourish. "What do you think of your bright son, now, Father?"

Father put on his glasses and gave one look at the card, another at his beaming boy, and said, "You may be all right, and very bright, but this card says that the person who gave you such a record is neither one nor the other."

"Why dad! I thought you'd be delighted. I got a perfect score. A hundred in every subject. Five subjects. What's the matter with that?"

"That you never got a hundred per cent in five subjects, nor in one. You couldn't. I don't say that you did not get a perfect score on a list of questions you were asked, but I do say that you did not get and should not believe you got, a hundred per cent in five school subjects, and conduct as the sixth. It couldn't be done."

"But I did."

"You got a perfect score. Yes. But you are deceived if you think you are a hundred per cent in your work and behavior. I know you are not and, you know you are not."

"Well, the teacher gave it to me."

"She is either a young and inexperienced teacher or she had some other equally personal reason for making this mistake in judgment. Well, pass that up. My business is with your idea of your work. You think because you have this too perfect score that you did something. I'm not so sure. Suppose I test you on these five subjects, the ground you covered last month, and see just where you stand."

"O, well, of course I don't know everything we had, but just the same."

"All right. Suppose you sit down and write out a short paragraph for each of five points that you covered in class last month in biology."

John couldn't do it. Maybe it was too severe a test at that, for one reared on a belief of his perfection.

Rating marks cause a great deal of worry, trouble and confusion. The teacher should have clearly in mind what the marks stand for, the basis on which they are given, the reason for which they are given.

My notion is that these marks are given to indicate the measure of success a pupil has made on work covered for the period. They are based on his actual accomplishment. They are to inform him about his

A Man's Dress Goggles
Dear Mrs. Post: Does a man wear his white gloves all during the evening at a formal wedding reception or a ball? Certainly he must be able to remove them sometime during the evening.

Answer: He wears them until supper time and after supper he puts them on again.

Who Provides the Chauffeur's Lunch?
Dear Mrs. Post: I am inviting friends from out of town to lunch on Sunday. They will have their chauffeur with them. What arrangements am I supposed to make about this man's meal?

Answer: The employers should send him to a restaurant. Perhaps they ask you where to tell him to go—otherwise, he finds out for himself. If you live far off in the country with no restaurant near, and they are driving on farther immediately after lunch, you would offer, if you possibly could, to give him a meal in your kitchen.

The Home Gardener

By Edwin H. Perkins

For good cool blue flowers to mix with midsummer yellow plants for cutting, try the veronicas. They are light, graceful spirals of blooming plants which are usually blue or violet although some white and pinkish sorts have been known and are still grown for rarity. Available are creeping sorts, like Veronica repens, which grow well in and over stone formations, compact types like Veronica incana with grey woolly foliage, which is interesting whether in or out of bloom, and the tall form of which Veronica spicata is a representative border sort.

The merest tyro can grow veronics with every assurance that they will reward the little time spent with them. For the budding gardener who is starting with poor soil they are indispensable. Veronics, in all sorts, grow in any fair garden soil in a sunny location. They are winter-hardy anywhere and aside from watering in especially dry weather demand little more than division of the crowded clumps every three years. Because they grow so freely and need division, nurserymen generally offer large divisions at especially low prices—far less than their actual worth to the purchaser.

Veronics are also propagated from seeds sown outdoors now in a light soil which is plentifully shaded. When large enough to transplant the seedlings will enjoy full sunshine. Bring the change about gradually by covering the seedling for the first two or three days after transplanting with a slatted berry box. This admits half sunshine. Veronics are sometimes sold as "speedwell."

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you wish to get ahead in life, take the best job available; do it the best way you can; and keep your eyes open for better jobs when they become available. Don't be stupid like Lyle, who sits at home waiting for success to search him out. Good old-fashioned elbow grease is still the essential ingredient in the prescription for success.

CASE N-116: Lyle J., aged 26, has been an automobile salesman.

"I wish you'd have a talk with him," his wife's sister telephoned me, "for he has been out of work for 6 months and they are expecting a baby soon."

"He just quit his job, apparently for no other reason than that he didn't like to sell automobiles. He had been moderately successful at it, though."

"Now he doesn't know what field he should enter. He thinks he job when you don't have another in prospect. And for a married man to do this when his wife is expecting a baby, labels him as an asinine bonehead. Such a fellow who can't expect to get anywhere in life even with the aid of a dozen expert vocational analysts.

Secondly, Lyle is in error in thinking he should instantly fall in love with a job. Few people show a passionate devotion to their work. They don't write love letters concerning it, or find their pulse pounding in delightful anticipation when they approach the time clock each morning.

There is no innate affinity between a person and any particular job. We learn to like our work by becoming so proficient therein that we can inflate our ego thereby through excellent work, or by earning a better salary.

Liking for work must develop along the same lines as all other habits. True, some people are educated to sneer at honest toil and to seek only white collar jobs, but they have been trained to such an attitude by false standards of merit. Perhaps a social climber type of home life has instilled this worship of bleached neck bands.

The A-B-C's Of Vocational Guidance
The first step in vocational guidance consists of finding how intelligent and person is. Obviously, a feebleminded male should not be steered into the professions, for he cannot graduate from grammar school.

My second step is to learn the social attitude of the patient. Is he an introvert? If so, he will find sales work and other extroverted tasks ever frightening. He'll be fonder of accounting, music, engineering, agriculture, art, chemistry and the other sciences.

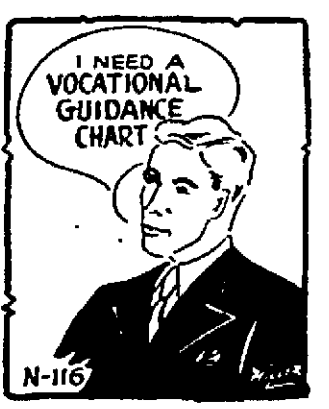

Thirdly, I analyze his chances of obtaining a technical education. I survey such items as his health, his appearance, his morality and honesty, his perseverance and refusal to be scared by hard work. Send me a long, self-addressed envelope with 6c postage thereon if you wish my VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE CHART.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters
Asey Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.
Mike Slade, vociferous artist.

Yesterday, Mike had learned about the murder from Jane. He was planning to help her run away.

Chapter 24
"Get Out—Stay Out!"

"Will you give me your word, Slade, not to try to beat it with Jane?" asked Asey.

"She and I are free, and we have every right to come and go as we please."

"You got the right," Asey said. "An' I'm the first to agree, but why be a fool? Will you promise to tuck that leavin' idea away in lavender for the time being?"

"Oh, well. Well, we haven't the money, anyway. We've just got to stay here and be intimidated and exploited and—"

"You poor things, you," Asey said. "Let's get back to another point. I'll grant you that we're keepin' this murder quiet, but it's legal quiet. You like the town, don't you? Well, why not let the town make its money, instead of blowin' things sky high over a murder? You blow, an' your job goes, 'cause the town goes bankrupt. Thought o' that angle?"

"Well, consider it. Now, why did you rush off an' hide after Monday night, if you didn't know about the murder until Jane let you know?"

"I've told you. I won't be intimidated! And I was going to hang around, and lay for whoever started that fire and stole my gun, and wrote that note! He thought I'd leave, and I was going to let him think I'd left, but I was going to stay around and see—"

"Who thought you'd leave? Slade, can't you stop fiddlin' an' tell me what you're talkin' about? Who suggested your leavin'? Who's intimidatin' an' conspirin' against you, an' for what?"

"This Old Home Week! I've got—this is, I had tried to scare me into going, and leaving my part for him, that's what, and I won't be scared! Not by him, I won't. And you can tell him as much for me, too, and I'm—"

"Who?" Asey asked wearily. "Who? Who? My lord, I sound like a hoot owl, an' I feel like hootin'! Who on earth are you talkin' about?"

"Brinley," Slade said. "What a detective you are! You don't seem to know anything! Brinley, of course. Little J. Arthur, he's behind all this!"

"You mean that poor fat hen-pecked man? That piece of Millicent? Oh, come now, Mike. Brinley's a lot of things, but he ain't hardly any master mind! That's goin' too far!"

"What about the message he left after he started the fire up at my studio?"

"What about it? Now, don't say again that I'm a punk detective. But you ain't mentioned this before, you know. This is news to me."

"Fish in my pants pocket," Slade said. "You'll find it there, a half sheet of notepaper, unless your filthy Cossack of a trooper spilled it out."

Asey found it, a much folded sheet of official Billingsgate town office paper, with the town seal and the names of the selectmen engraved upon it.

Written on it in large three-inch letters were four short words. "Get Out. Stay Out."

"Brinley's writing!" Slade said. "Now do you see?"

Brooding
It was nearly noon the next day before Asey began his solitary breakfast in the dining room at Aunt Sara's. On the table before him was the message that Slade had found in his studio, and a packet of letters written by Brin-

Good Taste Today

YOUNG PEOPLE
Dear Mrs. Post: I shall have a friend staying with me for about two weeks. She has never visited me and doesn't know any of my town friends except a few of the girls who live here and went to college when she and I did. During her visit I feel sure some of the young men I know will telephone me asking me to go to the movies or to a dance at one of the homes. At least it would be unusual not to have one call during that length of time. I don't see any one young men regularly and don't know any of them very well, as we moved here just before I went away to college. When, and if, a boy calls may I suggest that he get a friend of his for my friend?

Answer: It would not do at all. It seems to me, to ask a man you don't know very well to ask a friend of his to take your friend out. You may, of course, invite this man, and some other men and girls, to spend the evening at your house, or buy tickets and take them somewhere, and then after that it is likely that some of your guests will ask your house guest to go out. However, if you say to a man who

Plan 2nd Troop At Little Chute

Chris Wildenberg Named Scoutmaster at Committee Meeting

Little Chute — A regular meeting was held by the committee in charge of scouting at the village hall Wednesday evening. After the enrollment of boys was announced, it was voted to add another scoutmaster and form a second troop. Chris Wildenberg was named scoutmaster of the second troop. He will recommend an assistant at the next meeting.

At present there are 66 registered boys, between the age of 12 to 15, the age limit set by the committee, and these boys will form two troops.

It was decided that the present committee on scouting would handle both troops. At the next meeting, committeemen will be enrolled, and scouts will be assigned to troops by the scoutmasters.

After reports of the last meeting were read by Gerald Van Hoof, Troop Committee Secretary L. H. Schommer, committee chairman, outlined plans of proceeding with the troop program, and stated that arrangements will be made to invite local property and all scouts to visit Gardner dam, May 7. A caravan of autos is expected to leave in the morning for a full day's visit and to return in the evening.

Edward Bankert, recently appointed commissioner on scouting at Little Chute, attended the meeting and outlined some of the duties of the committee.

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk on Prevention Of Fires in Forests

Chilton — At the regular meeting of the Chilton Kiwanis club Tuesday evening at Hotel Chilton, the guest speaker was Helmer Dahl of Wausau, who discussed fire protection in northern Wisconsin.

In 1910 an amendment to the Wisconsin constitution giving the state the necessary authority for conservation of forests was voted down but a similar amendment was approved in 1924. Prior to the latter year, "slash" in northern Wisconsin never decayed, but was consumed by fires which came as regularly as the seasons. At first, protection by the state was confined only to state-owned land. Later, the speaker said, private owners of forests pooled their efforts with those of the state, resulting in much greater efficiency against damage from fires.

The state later took over forest protection in 34 counties, which were organized into districts, and range stations were constructed, Mr. Dahl said. Observation towers were built and were supplied with maps of surrounding regions. Tower men were usually taken from men living in the vicinity. Residents in fire districts who are clearing land must obtain permits to start fires from conservation commissions and such fires must be started between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock p. m. Fires travel faster by day than by night, because of the higher temperature and strong winds, the speaker explained.

Forest fire destructiveness in Wisconsin has been reduced about 70 per cent during the last 10 years, the speaker declared. Mr. Dahl is district fire ranger in northern Wisconsin.

Ten members of the women's chorus of the Chilton Woman's club were at Brillion Tuesday evening, where they sang two songs on a program put on by the Brillion Woman's club. Those from here who attended were Mrs. Nellie Hipke, director of the chorus; Mrs. E. C. Maples, accompanist; and Mrs. Arthur Jensen, Mrs. H. F. Arps, Mrs. Otto Schmidt, Mrs. A. J. McMahon, Mrs. Edward Landrum, Mrs. C. O. Piper, Mrs. Oscar Schaub, and Mrs. G. M. Morrissey.

Mrs. Frank Riss, who fell as she was visiting at the Oscar Meyer home and dislocated one of her shoulders, Mrs. Viola Davis (tell as she was getting out of a car Monday evening and suffered a badly sprained right ankle.

At the meeting of the Kiwanis club Tuesday evening, F. F. Schlosser, president of the club, was elected a delegate to the international Kiwanis convention to be held in Boston June 18 to 23.

Miss Dorothy Reinhold, teacher of art in the Mosinee public schools, spent the weekend visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Reinhold. In Saturday she went to Milwaukee to attend a gathering of the Phi Mu sorority, of which she is a member.

Urges Doubling of American Red-Cross Membership Rolls

Washington — (AP) — Red Cross workers from over the nation heard appeals Wednesday for doubling American Red Cross membership.

"Whether it be peace or war, the Red Cross must be stronger in membership and financial resources," James L. Fieser, vice chairman, said in an address prepared for a special membership session. "We must move toward a 10 per cent enrollment of the entire population. We are not prepared with 5,700,000 members, a mere 4.5 per cent."

President Roosevelt told delegates to the annual convention yesterday that the work of the Red Cross "never can be done while human misery exists."

"The spirit of the Red Cross does not wane," Mr. Roosevelt said in an address from the White House portico. "In a world disturbed by war and fear of war the unselfish devotion of the Red Cross to the welfare of others stands out in striking contrast to inhuman acts which have shocked our conscience."

U. W. Pays Interest On Fund Turned Down

Madison — (AP) — Although her $2,500 scholarship offer was rejected, Mrs. Clara Oppen, of Washington, D. C., will be reimbursed for loss of interest while the money was in possession of the University of Wisconsin board of regents.

The regents voted yesterday to pay the $60 demanded by the Washington woman whose plan to set up a scholarship fund for "white Protestant women" was turned down as being discriminatory at a previous board meeting.

Be A Careful Driver

Magician's Trick

The whole business was the work of a fool.

"Whoa!" he said suddenly. "Oh, I didn't mean you, Bertha. I—well, another cup of coffee, then."

It wasn't the work of a fool. He had been the fool, working at it the wrong way.

The fire hadn't been set with the purpose of exciting Slade, or frightening him. The note might be genuine, but it didn't mean a thing.

Slade wasn't the point at all. The point was the murder of Mary Randall.

Fires drew crowds. People went Aunt Sara said so. He made an awful racket, didn't he?" "Certainly did. You won't talk about it to—"

"Oh no. Aunt Sara told me not to."

As yet another waffle, and still another, and still the problem of J. Arthur Brinley and the fire at Slade's studio and the message left there all puzzled him.

To begin with, the fire hadn't been a very convincing fire; it hadn't been a very efficient fire, if Slade found evidence of preparation for it. And it hadn't been a very sensible method of scaring Slade out of town. Anyone who knew the man ought to know that opposition aroused him and he threw on it. Intimidation was the last weapon to force anyone like Mike Slade. The note was silly, just plain silly. It wasn't possible that even a chump like Brinley would think for a moment that Slade would be moved by that. He amended his thought: it would move Slade and arouse him to action, but it wouldn't move him out of town.

There was the rutted lane which he himself had taken, but no car could possibly get through that swamp. There were other old wagon lanes, but none of them were passable as far as cars were concerned. Now the fire would draw crowds from the midway, and particularly, he thought, it would draw the men constables and special firemen. It would draw people from the outer beach and the cottages there, people who might otherwise be passing by the hollow.

It was not a serious fire because it was not supposed to be a serious fire. It had been planned so that by the time it was over, everyone would say, "Oh, the fireworks, it's time for the first fireworks to go on," and everyone would swarm back to town, leaving the murderer to take a short cut across to the hollow, even as Asey had, and to shoot under the cover of the fireworks noise. All in all, it was an excellent bit of thinking. It had rounded up a swarm of people not only from the midway but from all over town, and landed them all eventually at the ball park—except for the men who were still watching the fire, and those were the men who would have noticed anything out of order. And they were collected in one place, away from the hollow.

Magician's trick, that was it. While everyone was watching the right hand, two eggs and a rabbit came out of the left.

And everyone except Slade called the fire the work of tourists, and Slade was given the note for something to think about, to draw his attention away from the main issue. Just, as in all probability, the shots fired at Weston and the Brinleys and Jeff and Sara had—why, of course! He'd been stupid. All the same sort of thing. All a smoke screen. APPLETON, WISCONSIN, THURSDAY, APRIL 27, 1939

Shawano Points
For Victory Over
High TrackstersTeams Will Clash Here
Friday Afternoon in A Dual Meet

SHAWANO—A steadily improving Shawano track team will travel to Appleton Friday in high hopes of its first victory of the season. The Indians have lost to West high and East high of Green Bay in that order, but showed definite improvement Saturday in their meet with East.

Coach Clifford Dill's squad is led by a relay team that has broken two records in two tries and should lower its present mark of 1:36 for the half mile before the season is much older. The team, now composed of Joe Brennan, Kenneth Ashley, Billy Reed and Harold Hamble, was clocked in that time at East Saturday, a new meet record by three full seconds.

The week before, with Hugo Meifert in Reed's position, the quartet stepped to a 1:36.2 half mile that broke the West stadium record. Meifert now is on the disabled list.

As the relay team's success indicates, the Indians are exceptionally strong in the short running events. The Shawano contingent has won five of a possible six places in two meets in both the 100 and 220, sweeping the 220 against East and the shorter run against West. Ken Ashley is the lone successful contender in the 440, and has been timed in :54.6.

In the half mile Garth Ashley, Dill's sophomore discovery, is undefeated. His best time was 2:08.4 against West Green Bay.

Hamble, one of the best Shawano individual stars, is the only boy to place in the weight events in either meet, and he has yet to get a point in the discus. Another consistent point-getter is Lloyd Duwe, who counted first in the broad jump and tied with a teammate in the high jump against East after second places in both in the earlier test. Duwe is also a pole vaulter.

TERRORS CAN'T WORK
Appleton High school tracksters will go into their dual meet with Shawano here Friday afternoon with no practice since Tuesday's defeat at the hands of Manitowish. Whiting field track where the Terrors work, is being used by Lawrence college fraternity athletes for their annual interfraternity track meet.

Harry Stroebe at
Bow on U. W. CrewWisconsin Oarsmen Will Compete at Poughkeepsie,
San Francisco

With 25 per cent more mileage behind them than at this date last year, University of Wisconsin oarsmen have settled down for the long pull of training which will continue unbroken from now until July 4, when the Badgers will participate in the intercollegiate regatta to be staged at the San Francisco world's fair. The real climax of the season, however, will be the annual intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 17.

Ralph Hunn, diminutive Wisconsin rowing coach, has now reduced his squad to five crews—the varsity, junior varsity, and three freshman eights. From this group, Hunn believes he will be able to turn out somewhat faster varsity and freshman boats than those which represented Wisconsin in 1938.

Hunn has so divided his varsity squad that he now has one boat made up of juniors and seniors and one, the junior varsity, composed exclusively of sophomores. At present, there is little difference between them. At 32 strokes per minute, the varsity and junior varsity eights row on practically even terms. Hunn's plan is to keep these two boat loads intact for some weeks, until he is thoroughly familiar with the capabilities of every one of the sixteen oarsmen from which he will re-boat them to get the most powerful possible varsity combination.

The veteran varsity eight is at present rowing as follows: Ed Ryan, stroke; Don Krause, 7; Bob Rosenheimer, 6; John Davenport, 5; Fred Krantz, 4; Bob Henderson, 3; Bill Drath, 2; Harry Stroebe, Appleton, bow; George Virgil and Frederick, coxswains.

Members of the all-sophomore junior varsity crew are Stanley Vaicelunas, stroke; John Bruemmer, 7; Lawrence Muskavich, 6; Anthony Krancus, 5; William Goodier, 4; Victor Breytspraak, 3; John Rydell, 2; Tom Lorenz, bow; Jack Gunning, coxswain. This is the last year's first freshman crew to a man but Goodier and Vaicelunas have exchanged seats.

Sande Doubts if He'll Have Starter for Derby
Lexington—Earl Sande, three times winning jockey in the Kentucky derby, trainer for John Hay Whitney, sadly discounts his chances of a starter in this year's classic at Churchill Downs.

Sande had the heart-breaking experience last year of having the favorite Staghound become ill a few days before the derby.

Earl said the running today of the Bluegrass stakes held his attention more than the derby because the showing of Heather Broom will determine whether he has a derby contender.

"I'm getting along pretty well as a trainer," he said, modestly, "omitting the fact his charges won more money than any other train-

CHAMPIONS OF THE ELKS WOMEN'S BOWLING LOOPS

Elk women bowlers closed their season about two weeks ago and Tuesday night ended activities until next fall with a banquet and the awarding of prize money.

This year there were two leagues, the American and the National, and above are the champions. At the top is the O. R. Kloben five which copied the American league title. The women are, left to right, Mrs. Jack Fromm, Mrs. George Mignon, Ruth Wunderlich, Beatrice Koble and Evelyn Wunderlich.

Young Millionaire to Make 4th
Bid for Indianapolis Honors

INDIANAPOLIS—Joe Thorne, 24-year-old millionaire who spends his money on speed creations, will make his fourth bid for the $20,000 top prize in the 500-mile Memorial day race here this year with three streamlined automobiles of proved swiftness and three drivers starved for victory.

He has entered two blue speedsters which led for 375 miles in last year's race before going out with engine trouble and a third car which holds the lap record of 130.492 miles an hour for the two-and-a-half-mile speedway.

All carry six-cylinder motors equipped with superchargers and which burn an alcohol compound. Art Sparks, designer for Thorne in Los Angeles, has rebuilt them and will ship them here soon.

Thorne will drive

Jimmie Snyder, Chicago tavern-keeper, and Rex Mays, Van Nuys, Calif., dirt-track ace, will drive the cars which headed last year's pack. Thorne himself will be the third driver.

Thorne has had cars in the last three races, but only one ever finished in the money. Zeke Meyer of Philadelphia piloted that one into ninth place at the finish in 1936.

Snyder in three years at Indianapolis is never has finished. He set the lap record in 1937 in the car Thorne will use.

Mays, who will be driving for Thorne for the first time, has raced here the last four years but has never finished.

Thorne, six-foot, three-inch heir to a railroad and banking fortune, has tinkered with motorcycles, speedboats, airplanes and racing automobiles since boyhood.

Barred from driving at Indianapolis in 1936 because of lack of experience, the New Rochelle, N. Y., sportsman went out and got that experience on dirt tracks. He barely missed qualifying for one of the 33 starting positions the next year.

Last year, after finally qualifying, he drove into eighth place at 160 laps but was flagged off the track later when rain set in after the leaders had finished.

Seymour. Freedom Meet in Practice
Ball Game Sunday

Seymour—After being rained out of a practice game last Sunday, Seymour again will make an attempt to stage a practice game with Freedom Sunday. The Freedom team is a member of the Outagamie County league and will furnish Seymour with plenty of opposition.

This is Freedom's first attempt at playing regular league ball but they have signed up players that should make them a contender in the county league. A win over Seymour would start them off right.

Fans from Freedom are expected to follow the team to Seymour Sunday as the people in and around Freedom are red hot baseball fans and a win over a state league club would furnish them with a real afternoon's entertainment.

Seymour will be trying out several new players Sunday. The starting lineup, however, will have Lamers or Hartjes catching; Brown, Weisgerber, Penzenstadler or Kelly pitching; Baldy Eckert, first base; Nubbs Koenig, second base; Hammy Powell, shortstop; Eddie Zielinski, third base; Hammen, Bowers and Nicodem in the outfield.

Tonight and Friday night a big delegation of Appleton booster bowlers will be on the drives. They will complete the booster entry for the meet which closes this weekend.

Throwbacks of Olden Days
In Nation's Favorite Sport

NEW YORK —(AP)— Now that baseball is celebrating its centennial it seems timely to say that Bill Terry requires his Giants to leave at least a quarter (two-bits) under their plates for the waiters.

This is just one example of the progress that baseball has made in 100 years.

In the old days players didn't have a quarter to leave. They gave no quarter and asked no quarter. Nowadays many feel they don't have a quarter to leave, either—without urging.

There are players who, without orders, would park a buffalo nickel under their platters. Some athletes of this type can be found under alphabetical headings A to Y. (There are no ball players whose names begin with Z.)

Mr. Terry has never been famed for his own open handedness. The back of my hand to you has often been his attitude, knowing the tendency among players. Terry has, reportedly, instructed his N. Y. "Jints" as to the minimum tipping requirements.

"My players shall be first in generosity, if not first in the National league," Terry declares.

Mr. Terry rather takes after Mr. McGraw, his tutor. John McGraw was the Giants' brain trust. The Little Napoleon told his players: "I'll do the thinking for this club. You play." Mr. Terry likes to do the thinking for the Giants. Even down to the tips.

Many players are generous. Paul Derringer, the big Cincinnati pitcher, once gave me two fancy cigars. Too rich for his blood, he said. Now anyone who gives some fancy cigars is a nice guy. If that sounds like a hint, why just make the most of it.

Had Quaint Habits
Another forward step. Formerly players were rowdy and were not wanted in the better hostilities. They desired bedsteads and washstands and had quaint habits of tipping buckets of water over transoms onto the heads of unsuspecting victims, never thinking that said water would damage furnishings and drip down onto the next floor, where Mr. Scruggs was coming his wig.

Nowadays nothing like that ever happens, except in Pittsburgh, when Mr. Van Mungo gets very sore indeed and ungently taps a teammate's cranium with the business end of a chair. Or Rollie Hemsley's recent stunt of tossing lighted matches into upper berths of the Pullman in which Cleveland players were sleeping.

Furthermore, baseball is the only sport that lassos the President for its opening. This bit of progress has come about in the last quarter-century. Historians leave us no direct information on the matter, but it is likely that in 1839, when Abner Doubleday originated baseball, that that Martin Van Buren, the White House incumbent, gave it no more notice than a casual stroking of his sideburns and another dip of snuff.

In the old days athletes weren't paid much. Now they get folding money, but there is a disquieting report from Washington that Clark Griffith doesn't take much stock in playing players. He gets the President to pitch for him for nothing. And, by sin," he explodes, "what's good enough for the President should be good enough for them guys."

Canadeo had Duncan on the floor six times before Referee Dauber Jaeger counted him out.

Other decisions:
Eddie Toxall defeated Paul Rivers, Vevie Van defeated James Coyne, Matt Mihailovich defeated Orville Eighmy, Dorsey Kemp defeated Paul Altizer and Johnny Pleasant defeated Johnny Francisco.

PEARL HORNKE poked high individual marks of 208 and 570 during Women's City league matches at Arcade alleys last night. Team honors went to State Restaurant with an 887 game and Belling's Drugs with a 2584 series. Final matches will be rolled at 7 o'clock this evening.

Cary Oil Burners, who already have clinched the league title, loafed last night and lost three games to Polka Dot Beauty Shop. High for the winners was H. Welton with a 485 series. L. Cotton banged a 206 game and 491 series for the losing five.

Belling's Drugs took undisputed possession of second place when they scored a 3-game win over Schaefer Dairy. Pacing the attack was G. Koerner with a 195 single and 539 triple. I. Radke thumped 200 and 495 for the losers.

Score Upset
State Restaurant upset Automotive Supply in three games to gain third place and shove the losers from a second place tie down to fourth place. P. Hornke was the big gun of the State Restaurant attack with her high scores and C. Nooven added a 556. G. Ashman tallied 493 for the losing team.

Metropolitan Cafe won the odd game from Oaks Candies as F. Gehring shot 554 and D. Clark banged 200. D. Westworth paced the losers with a 203 game and 563 total.

Two games were credited to Arcades in a match with Kolosso Garage. L. Lucders sparked the winners with a 302 series while L. Geske was high for the losers with a 474 count.

Adler-Brau won the odd game from Heinie's Tavern as V. Thayer hammered 500. R. Neffke showed 503 for the losers.

HANGS UP A 300

Mike Sakellaris, above, entered bowling's hall of fame yesterday on the Arcade alleys when he rolled a perfect game, 300, while enjoying a bit of exercise with Barney Meyers and Roy Haueri. It was the second perfect score hit in the city this year, Joe Muench, Neenah, getting a 300 on the Arcade drives during the winter. Mike won't realize much on the accomplishment, however, because prizes and medals awarded for perfect games come only when rolled in league competition. Sakellaris rolls with the Power company in the Industrial league during the league season. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Clintonville Has
Hopes for Better
Grid Team in '39Coach Johnson Searching
For Boys to Replace
Martin, Goerlinger

CLINTONVILLE — Handicapped by cold and rainy weather, Coach Art "Swede" Johnson has only had about a week of spasmodic practice for his grid candidates for the Clintonville high 1939 squad. With warmer weather in sight, Johnson has hopes that he might be able to get some line on what kind of a team will take the field for the Clint's next fall.

Without a doubt, next year's edition will be another pony squad with only one or two of the boys tipping the scale at 200. Coach Johnson will be faced with the task of filling in the big gaps left by Jack Martin, last year's field general, and Ozzie Goerlinger and Ronny Fillnow, the only two big boys on last season's squad. Goerlinger played for four years and did most of the team's punting, passing, and ball carrying. Fillnow played in the line for three years and last year shifted from tackle to center.

This week the Clint grid candidates have been using the tackling dummy to a great extent. Downfield blocking also is being stressed this year, something that hasn't been necessary for the Clintonville boys to know before because they never had any use for it. Next season, however, the Clints are building up hopes that they will be on a level with the rest of their opponents.

Coach Johnson's greatest trouble in spring training is to find someone to fill the center gap and also find capable reserves. As yet no one has been found who even gives promise that they might be able to start as a regular at center. However, Ronny Fillnow and Ozzie Goerlinger, both seniors, are helping Coach Johnson conduct the practice and are spending most of their time giving some of the candidates a few instructions in the art of passing the ball back from center.

Lillard Pitches
Chicago Cubs to Win Over PiratesGives Eight Hits, Walks
Four in Major Debut as Hurler

CHICAGO —(AP)— The National league's pace setting Chicago Cubs ran their victory string to four yesterday as Gene Lillard, former Cub infielder making his major league debut as a pitcher, turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates 3 to 1.

Lillard allowed eight hits and walked four, pitching himself out of several tight spots as the Cubs managed to get their first man on base in every inning but the fourth and ninth.

The lone Pirate run came in the seventh when Woody Jensen's force-out scored Gus Suhb after a single and two walks had filled the bases.

Chicago collected seven hits off three Pittsburgh pitchers, bunting four of them in the fifth for all their runs. The attack drove Cy Blanton from the box after the Buc hurler had retired the first nine batters to face him.

CARDS WIN CLOSE ONE
St. Louis —(AP)— Two accurate throws by Outfielder Terry Moore helped Curt Davis pitch and bat the St. Louis Cardinals to a 1 to 0 victory yesterday over the Cincinnati Reds.

Davis limited the Reds to five hits, but they could have scored one and possibly two runs had Moore's pegs been wild. In the sixth, Ernie Lombardi was nipped at the plate attempting to lumber in on Wally Berger's single, and in the ninth Moore nailed Ival Goodman trying to reach third on Frankie McCormick's single.

The Cardinals got only six hits off a trio of Redleg pitchers, Lee Grissom, Peaches Davis and Junior Thompson. Grissom yielded the winning run in the fourth. Moore worked him for a pass, went to third on Lynn Myers' single and scored on Curt Davis' single.

Hitler's 'Mein Kampf' Heads List of New Books at Library

New London — Adolph Hitler's "Mein Kampf," the most important political book of the day and most widely read autobiography in America, headlines the new books made available to readers at the New London Public library today. Many writers have been exploring Germany and two American women, both intelligent observers, have written their experiences as an interpretation of life in Nazi Germany. Norah Wain presents in "Reaching for the Stars," her thorough, unprejudiced observations during four years in Germany. Martha Dodd, daughter of the former United States ambassador to Germany, writes her account in "Through Embassy Eyes."

Apart from militarism and dictatorships is the latest book of Admiral Byrd, "Alone." New novels of note include "Old Haven" by David de Jong, a sort of grown-up Hans Brinker story; "Man's Hope" by Andre Malraux, a story of war-torn Spain; "The Sisters" by Myron Brining, recently adapted to the movies; "Colin Lowrie" by Norah Lofts, an unusually strong character study; "The Thibaults" by Roger du Gard; and Louis Redfield Peattie's latest book, "Tomorrow Is Ours."

A drive for the return of old books will be started this week and continue until May 15, according to Miss Grace Fleischauer, librarian. A "conscience" box will be placed outside the library for the convenience of patrons who possess library books long overdue. The books may be deposited in the box outside without embarrassment or financial obligation. The purpose of the box is to retrieve the many books forgotten and misplaced around the home and often uncovered during spring housecleaning.

140 Present as New London Relief Corps Celebrates Its 50th Anniversary at Banquet

New London—"The work of the Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, is just beginning," Mrs. Daisy Heinemann, Milwaukee, state president of the W.R.C., told 140 members and guests gathered at the American Legion clubhouse yesterday afternoon to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the New London Henry Turner Corps No. 62.

"Any member with the least thought that with the passing of the last of the Grand Old Army the work of the corps is finished, is unworthy to be a member of the organization," Mrs. Heinemann declared. She urged renewed activity and pleaded for the appointment of a W.R.C. member to the executive board of the Wisconsin Veterans home at Waupaca which, she said, the W.R.C. has always strongly supported.

Mrs. Heinemann was one of several prominent speakers, among them Colonel William Holden, commander of the Wisconsin Veterans home who assured the group that the W.R.C. is as important now as ever, is an organization that can not be superseded by any other and for which there always will be a need. Colonel Charles Pearsall of the Wisconsin Veterans Administration at Wood, Wis., and Francis J. Meinhardt, Waupaca county service officer, Pearsall dwelt on the traditions of loyalty and patriotism of the organization.

Judge Is Toastmaster
Judge A. M. Scheller acted as toastmaster at the program which began with a 12:30 luncheon served by the American Legion auxiliary and continued with talks, musical entertainment, and the introduction of dozens of out-of-town guests until nearly 4 o'clock in the afternoon when the golden jubilee birthday cake was cut and served to the guests.

Greetings were extended to the New London corps by the Girl Scouts through Hazel and Edna Babcock; by the American Legion and auxiliary through Mr. and Mrs. Otto Krueger, respectively; by the Anna Heath Junior club through Joyce Herres; from the past presidents of the American Legion auxiliary by Mrs. D. B. Egan, president; from the past presidents of the Relief corps by Mrs. Nellie Wells; from Mrs. L. J. Manske and Mrs. E. G. Jagoditch of the local corps, past department president and secretary, respectively. Greetings also were sent by the Marion corps and all were personally acknowledged by Mrs. Peter Schuh, president of the corps.

Honored members of the New London corps were Mrs. Manske, who was general chairman of the anniversary affair, Mrs. Jagoditch and Mrs. David Rickaby as one-time holders of state offices. Mrs. Rickaby, who presented the history of the corps, was the first of the New London unit to receive a state office when she was elected to the department executive board in 1901. The percentage this year is 72, while it was 73 during 1938 and 70 during 1937.

While there was a large increase in revenue from the sale of water in the commercial section of the city, there were correspondingly large decreases in the residential and industrial sections. ### County Accident Toll Increasing

Record Climbs During The First Weekend Of Balmey Weather

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—The first weekend of balmey spring weather brought with it an increase in the number of traffic accidents in Winnebago county, Floyd L. Wright, county safety league official, reported this week.

Five accidents in the county, two of major proportions, swelled the county's accident record considerably over that of a year ago. There were 36 accidents since the first of April, Wright pointed out, compared with last year's total of 21. The death of Robert A. Young last week in an accident at Menasha brought the first fatality of the year. Last year in the same period there was also one auto crash fatality.

Eight persons were treated this weekend for injuries received in the accidents. One of these was a serious injury. Walter Olesen, Oshkosh, suffering a fractured jaw and other cuts and bruises as a result of the accident which occurred Sunday morning at 1:45 a m. in which three cars were involved. This mishap occurred just north of Oshkosh on Highway 41 and 45.

The total number of accidents since the first of the year now stands at 190, with one fatality, 63 persons injured, and 290 cars damaged. A year ago, there were 170 accidents, one fatality, fifty-nine injured and 150 cars damaged.

Sen. Brown Doesn't Want to License Cane Pole Fishermen

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The attempt to compel cane pole fishermen to pay a $1 license fee for the privilege of fishing illustrates a trend which may ultimately destroy all liberties, according to Senator Taylor G. Brown, (R), of Winnebago county, who vigorously protested a hook and line licensing bill in the Wisconsin senate yesterday.

The bill was engrossed, however, over the protests of Brown and senators of his and other parties. "I am reluctant to oppose this bill," Brown began, "because I was accused recently of fishing for votes myself."

"The people would resent having to pay a dollar to go out and fish for just once, for example, on Decoration Day. "A lot of people go out for the sunshine. Some don't care whether they get a fish or not. There are a great number of those people would resent this privilege being taken away from them.

"Our liberties are being taken away from us. Soon we'll have to buy a license to breathe. This is a taxation bill, and is for those people who make a business of fishing. For the great majority of people who want to have a holiday once in a while it will be an imposition," he claimed.

The bill is intended to increase state conservation revenues in order to expand fish culture and protection.

Rocket Trackmen To Meet W. DePere

Neenah Seeks Second Victory in Dual Meet Friday Afternoon

Neenah—Coach Ole Jorgensen's Neenah high school track squad will oppose West DePere in a dual meet, the second of the season for the Rockets, at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon on the Neenah track.

The Rocket trackmen also will be seeking their second victory, having defeated Menasha, 71 to 37, here Monday afternoon.

In the dual meet with Menasha, Coach Jorgensen found that his squad was weak in three events, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash and mile. Otherwise, the Rocket trackmen practically dominated the meet.

Jorgensen will be shifting his trackmen for the dual meet, and the shifts will be the result of practice races being held this week. Expected to pile up points for the Rockets in the West DePere match are the following: Captain Dean Sword, Warren and Buxton Kettering, Arthur Krause, Dan Schmidt, Robert Hackstock, Taves, Ed Winkelman, Donald Jape, Meyer, Bunker Haas, Kuecher, Vander-walker and King.

It Is Said--

That Mayor W. H. Jensen of Menasha is considering spring training for the baseball season. He has been asked to be the first batter when the Polish Falcons open their 1939 Fox Valley League schedule at Kaukauna on May 7. Mayor Nelson of Kaukauna is scheduled to do the hurling while Glenn Miller, Kaukauna, president of the baseball league, will do the catching. The Menasha mayor is scheduled to try his throwing arm when the Falcons open their home season on May 28. Neenah will invade Menasha for the first home game for the Falcons.

Seven New County Board Members to Be Seated Tuesday

Graduated Pay Schedule For Courthouse Employees on Calendar

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—Seven new faces will be seen at the annual May session of the Winnebago county board which convenes here next Tuesday, May 2.

Ed Crowley, Town of Poygan; James D. Hawley, Second ward, Menasha; William Draheim, Second ward, Neenah; Jules Dreger, Second ward; Lyman Kezerie, Seventh ward; Martin Kitz, Eleventh ward, and Rudolph Novotny, Thirteenth ward, all of Oshkosh, are the new members who will take the oath of their office next Tuesday as the board convenes in the county courthouse at 10 a. m.

The May session marks the first anniversary of county board sessions in the new Winnebago county courthouse which was completed about a year ago. Last May, for the first time, and, before the building was fully completed, the county board members assembled in the new building. The official dedication, however, took place in the latter part of June, but, the county board room on the fourth floor was one of the first rooms in the building to be made available.

To date there are no major problems confronting the board as verified by the files in the office of Arthur Hedke, county clerk.

Must Name Chairman
There are a few matters which will confront the board as usual routine business in the May session. A chairman will be elected from the group to succeed Jerry F. Shea, present chairman of the board. The printing of the proceedings of the board will be allowed on contract, and a requisition for space by the agricultural adjustment association will be discussed.

Held over from the March session is the matter of placing courthouse employees on a graduated salary schedule. This will again be put before the board and discussed.

The printing committee will make its reports on a communication received last March from Neenah-Menasha printers, asking that they be given consideration in purchase of printed matter by the various departments of the county.

At a meeting last week, this committee prepared and sent a communication to the assemblymen and state senator of this district asking that legislation be amended so that the county purchasing agent may purchase material without asking for bids. At present the county purchasing agent may not buy any material outright if the cost is to exceed $60. The committee felt that by having this statute amended the purchasing agent can give consideration to all firms in the county.

serve next year are Miss Irene Harnay, vice president, and John Novakowski, secretary and treasurer.

Neenah—Officers of Nicolet post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, as well as of the auxiliary of the V. F. W., will be installed at a joint meeting Saturday night in Germania hall.

They are Fred Stahl, commander who will succeed Oscar Blank; Emil Blank, senior vice commander; Frank Sanelle, junior vice commander; Henry Kemps, chaplain; Harvey Thornton, quartermaster; Dr. R. B. Rogers, post surgeon, and Oscar Blank, post advocate.

Officers of the auxiliary of Nicolet post will be installed by Catherine Sloan, Oshkosh, department senior vice president who will act as installing officer, and Adeline Huebner, Neenah, who will act as installing conductress.

The officers to be installed are Mrs. Henry Kemps, president; Mrs. A. O. Christopher, senior vice president; Mrs. Arthur Hass, junior vice president; Mrs. Thad Sheerin, treasurer; Mrs. Gus Timm, chaplain; Mrs. William Campbell, conductress; Mrs. John Maciejewski, guard, and Mrs. Marie Blank, trustee for 18 months.

A dancing party will follow the installation of officers.

All-Brigade Night to Be Held in Gymnasium

Neenah—All-Brigade night will be held for members of the Neenah Boys' Brigade this evening in the gymnasium.

The sixth, seventh and eighth grade groups will have a party from 7 to 8:30 when games will be played and other entertainment furnished, while members of the high school groups and their guests will be guests of the leaders and their wives. Dancing will be held.

Road Committee Buys New Trucks

Three Machines are Purchased at Total Net Cost of $1,869

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—Three new trucks were purchased by the Winnebago county highway committee here Tuesday. One pickup and two panel trucks were purchased at a total net cost of $1,869.16 with allowances for trade-in on old vehicles.

Contracts for the purchase of the new equipment were allowed as follows: one-half ton panel Dodge from the Nelson Kruse Motor company of Neenah, at a net cost of $690; a one-half ton panel International truck from the Werth Motor company, Oshkosh, net cost, $674.16; and a pickup truck from the Blackett Motor Sales company of Omro at a net cost of $505.

The committee also voted to purchase twenty carloads of road oil to be used on county roads and highways.

Thirty-thousand feet of snow fence was ordered to be purchased by the committee. Thirty-five hundred steel supporting poles to be used in conjunction with this fencing also were ordered, both the fencing and poles from the Wheeler Arnold company of Wittenberg.

Appleton Lawyer Raps Hidden Taxes In Talk to Kiwanis

Draining Resources of People, Honkamp Tells Club

Neenah—Asserting that the United States can become a socialized or a totalitarian state through economic conditions, Attorney E. R. Honkamp, Appleton, told Kiwanians in a talk Wednesday noon at the Valley Inn that "hidden taxes, not higher prices of commodities, are draining the resources of the citizens of Wisconsin as well as the nation."

The former deputy collector for the internal revenue department declared that "hidden taxes are diminishing the purchasing power of the people," and he contended that when greater power is given to a government, the nation becomes dominated by government. "Dictators gain power by economic conditions, and that can happen here as well as in Germany or Italy."

The attorney declared that "hidden taxes are causing a dangerous situation," and he claimed that representatives at Madison as well as Washington don't hesitate to vote for a measure calling for "hidden taxes" instead of direct taxation. The reason they're not afraid is because there is no unified opposition against the support of these measures.

Economy Is Remedy
"If the United States turns into a socialized state it will be the result of either a demand by the people or their indifference. If there is a change in government, it should be openly and honestly. This dangerous situation, however, can be averted, for taxes are the life blood of the government, and if they are held down, the government will maintain a steady stride."

A Negro quartet from C. M. and I. college, Jackson, Miss., entertained during the luncheon. The college, Bishop W. E. Holman, director, told the club is for Negro students alone. The singers were Simon Armstrong, W. L. Hardy, Edward Armstrong and W. L. Johnson.

Gaylord C. Loehning, club president, announced that a ladies night program will be held May 19 in place of the regular noon meeting.

Corrective Reading Discussed at Meeting

Neenah—Corrective reading was discussed at a meeting of Neenah High school and Kimberly school teachers last night at the high school. Mrs. Laura Utery, grade school supervisor, led the discussion on the theories, while Miss Le Nora Meyer, high school instructor, gave a report on the work done in her corrective reading class.

Miss Meyer reported that the results of the special work being done in the class of 24 students are encouraging.

Wisconsin. The price of the fencing is the same as a year ago, 62 cents per running foot.

Priest Will Speak at St. Mary Booster Fete

Menasha—The annual booster banquet of St. Mary High school will be held Sunday night, May 7, in the school hall. The Rev. William Willinger, assistant pastor of St. Mary parish, will be the speaker. More than 300 boosters of the school are expected to attend the banquet. Awards in debate, forsenics, basketball and other activities will be presented.

Health Board to Sponsor Disease Prevention Drive

Annual Program Will be Conducted at Menasha in May

Menasha—The annual communicable disease prevention program, sponsored by the Menasha board of health with the cooperation of Menasha physicians, will be held early in May. Preventive treatment for smallpox and diphtheria will be given without charge to the parents of the children.

Notices of the program have been sent to all parents along with permission cards which must be signed by the parent or guardian of each youngster who is to receive the treatment. The clinics will be held at the Jefferson school with local physicians in attendance.

Children now attending school who have not been vaccinated or inoculated should be permitted to take advantage of this means of disease prevention, according to Mrs. Sigrid Dudley, school health nurse. Pre-school children also will be included in the campaign and any youngsters from nine months of age and over may be taken to the clinics.

"Safeguards Health"
"Communicable disease prevention, such as inoculation against diphtheria and vaccination against smallpox, have proven the possibility of eliminating these hazards to child and community health," Mrs. Dudley said. "Every child residing in the city of Menasha should have the privilege of such protection early in life, especially before entering school or at the latest during the kindergarten or first grade period."

Many states regularly enforce communicable disease preventive measures. In those states such communicable disease occurrences are very rare while in some states records showing the absence of same over a period of years can be produced, it was said.

Menasha's record has been an exceptionally good one due to parents' cooperation in having their children take advantage of this protection.

AUTOMOBILE FIRE

Menasha—The Menasha fire department was called to Racine and Ninth streets at 11:15 Wednesday night when a fire started in a car driven by Vitus Park, 131 Broad street. Damage was slight.

NEENAH MENASHA

Big Crowd Hears High School Band

Twelfth Annual Spring Concert Is Presented at Menasha Auditorium

Menasha—The 65-piece Menasha high school band presented its twelfth annual spring concert to a large audience Wednesday night in the school auditorium. The entire group performed well. L. E. Kraft is the band director.

The program opened with "Triumph," a concert march number which showed balance. The clarinet section was outstanding. "The Tales of the Vienna Woods" and "Skyliner" were consistently well-played.

The currently popular "Deep Purple" was played by the band while the public address system was used to feature the work of Twyla Bae Moon at the piano. Encores included a rendition of "Tiger Rag" and a novelty number, "Every Man for Himself," which introduced various sections of the band and finally merged into a musical battle with three tunes and an accompaniment raging at the same time. The cornets won.

The second part of the concert presented a girl-sextet playing "Morning in the Forest" and was followed by a duet duet by Billy Hahn and Marie Dornbrook. Gerald Jensen played a cornet solo, "Nereid," and performed with a clean and distinct treatment of his phrases. He was especially fine in his triple-tonguing work.

The third part of the program opened with "March of Youth," "The Unfinished Symphony" and "The tree of the Gods into Valhalla" were the concluding numbers and were well played. In the "Unfinished Symphony" the clarinets again shone and the rendition of the final number was exceptional. The concert ended with "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Fellowcraft Degree Will be Conferred At Special Meeting

Menasha—The fellowcraft degree will be conferred at a special meeting of John A. Bryan Lodge No. 98, F. and A.M., Monday night at the lodge rooms, according to Oscar E. Peterson, worshipful master.

Members of the Masonic lodge and their wives will hold a breakfast meeting at 9 o'clock Sunday morning in observation of rededication week. They will attend the church services at the First Congregational church where the Rev. W. A. Jacobs is the pastor. The date also will mark the one hundred-fiftieth anniversary of the inaugural of George Washington.

The Masons opened their rededication week observation last Monday night at a dinner attended by 50 Master Masons. Herbert Heller, Jake Herbold and Edward Saeker, past masters, and Richard O'Brien, Philip Herbold and Fred Butterworth, members of the lodge, assisted in the program. The Rev. T. B. Death Takes Colorful Pioneer
From Ogdensburg and Manawa

Manawa — Funeral services for Henry C. Smith, who died at his home in Ogdensburg Wednesday morning, will be conducted at the Methodist Episcopal church here at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon by the Rev. Lowell L. Reykdal. Burial will be in the Manawa cemetery.

"Hank" Smith undoubtedly still was undecided whether he would rather make his permanent home in Manawa or Ogdensburg. For "Hank" probably traveled back and forth between the two villages more times during the past 77 years than any other individual.

When Mr. Smith died, he was a resident of Ogdensburg but he was seriously thinking of moving back to Manawa except for the fact that he had plenty of wood in the shed to last another winter—and he thought it would be an awful nuisance to move wood.

"Hank," as he was commonly called by hundreds of residents in central Waupaca county, had been closely connected with the village of Manawa from its origin to the present time. He remembered this village even before it had a name when there were just two shanties and a saloon here. He recalled when the little hamlet became known as Brickley, and he took an active part in the growth and progress of the village after it assumed the present name of Manawa.

Came With Grandparents

Shortly after the death of his father, the boy came west with his grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Nichols. They settled first at Wautoma and lived at Oshkosh a short time before moving to Ogdensburg when "Hank" was eight years old. Mr. Nichols operated a cooper mill at Ogdensburg.

When Mr. Smith was 22 years old he married Miss Ruth Stevens at the old Isaac Stevens farm three miles west of Manawa on Oct. 20, 1875.

Mrs. Smith died here Nov. 19, 1924. Mr. Smith married Miss Elsie M. Weisgerber of this place on Nov. 25, 1925. They moved from here to Ogdensburg in the spring of 1928 and had made their home in that village ever since. Mr. Smith had four children, two daughters, Pearl, Mrs. E. F. Strong, Eagle River, and Mary, Mrs. Chas. E. Ross, Manawa, and two sons, Fred, Rhinelander, and Frank, Manawa.

The life history of Mr. Smith is particularly interesting because it presents a cross-section of the history of a pioneer people and the transition of a backwoods settlement to a thriving municipality. Henry had been a farmer, logger, riverhog, grocery store owner, real estate dealer and gardener. When he first saw Manawa on one of his numerous trips up and down the Little Wolf river, the only buildings here were a shanty near the spot where Esche's mill now stands, another shanty near the present Central hotel and a saloon down near the depot.

Railroad Changed Things

Why this wide separation of buildings. Mr. Smith had no idea. Back in those days — it must have been about 1872 or 1873 — Ogdensburg was a much bigger place than this village, boasting a saw mill, a grist mill, several other business houses and a number of residences. The railroad had gone through a few years previously and, apparently, that asset later benefited Manawa more than it did Ogdensburg.

Henry used to recall his association with his grandfather, Solomon Nichols. "He told me one time when I was a boy," Henry was known to say, "that before I died I would see ships flying in the air and horseless carriages on every street. He must have been a smart man but I thought he was a little old and light headed."

Mr. Smith remembered when practically all of the territory included in the village of Manawa was pretty much a wilderness—all trees and underbrush. There was a road from Symco to Manawa, winding around stumps and trees across the old wooden bridge and down to the railroad.

$100 For Farm

His first home in Manawa was a "forty" on the present Patzer farm where he and his wife lived in a log house. Hank paid an even $100 for the entire layout. Later he "farmed" it on 40 acres, the center of which is now the J. T. Penn home. Real estate prices were on the upgrade and Henry paid $800 for this farm, with a house and barn thrown in.

When he wasn't farming he was working in the woods and on the river. On several occasions he made maple syrup on the farm which later became the property of E. E. Colien and then of J. T. Penn. When he sold this 40 acres, he bought the store near the depot now owned by C. F. Bork. This was later sold to the Max Brenner family and then the Smiths moved to a farm in Little Wolf now owned by Ed Kriese. About 1910 they came back to Manawa.

Henry was successful in the real estate game in his own way. He bought houses, improved them and

D. J. Rohrer New Rotary President At Clintonville

Club Entertains Rotary Anns and Public School Faculty

Clintonville — The Rotary club entertained the Rotary Anns and members of the public school faculty at a 6:30 dinner Tuesday evening at Hotel Marson. Eighty-one were seated at the meal. Max Stier, a past president of the club and a member of the board of education, presided as toastmaster and introduced each of the teachers. Melvin Bartz of the high school choir responded on behalf of the teaching staff. Each Rotarian and his wife also were introduced to the guests.

The program included a group of songs by the high school choir, under the direction of Miss Edith Gray, and selections by a boys' quartet composed of Harold Mitchell, Ronald Elling, Charles Mack and George Hafeman.

Cards and dancing concluded the entertainment. Prizes at cards were won by William Schumacher, Mrs. Gertrude Schuri and Mrs. E. A. Hutchinson.

During a brief business session, officers were chosen for the ensuing year. D. J. Rohrer was elected president to succeed John Winkler; Francis M. Higgins was named vice president; and William H. Schultz was reelected secretary-treasurer. Directors are Harley J. Powell, Lloyd Pinkowsky and Floyd Hurley. The new officers will assume their duties July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schmolli and daughter, Carol, W. Eighth street, will move next week to a farm near Symco, which they have recently purchased. Before moving to Clintonville, the Schmolls lived in Manawa.

Addresses Lions

Martin Lyon, chief of the fire department, and superintendent of the Clintonville Water and Electric plant, traced the growth of both departments at a meeting of the Lions club Tuesday evening. Mr. Lyon has been head of the local electric plant since the days, when the electric power was generated at the old power house on Bennett street now owned by the Clintonville Transfer company. For a number of years, the power has been purchased from the Wisconsin Power and Light company.

The evening opened with a "fish fry" supper in the clubhouse on Long Lake. Officers for 1939-40 will be nominated at next week's meeting of the club.

The fire department was called at about 8 o'clock Tuesday evening to a large grass fire near the slough located between West Eighth street and the Pigeon river. The blaze

Several Hundred Musicians Are Expected at Kimberly

Kimberly—Several hundred high school students are expected to accompany their bands to the village Saturday when the second band festival of the Little Nine conference will be held, with nine bands participating. The festival is not competitive and will have two non-conference bands, Kaukauna and Pulaski, taking part.

Other bands in the Little Nine taking part are: Wrightstown, Reedsville, Winneconne, Hortonville, Seymour, Hilbert and Kimberly.

The program will open in the threatened buildings on adjoining lots but no damage resulted.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Long were at Sheboygan Tuesday, where they attended a meeting of the Fox River Valley Florists association. This was the first meeting conducted by the 1939 officers, who are: Otto Schroeder, Jr., of Green Bay, president; F. J. Long, Clintonville, vice president; and W. G. Kraemer, Neenah, secretary-treasurer. The next meeting will be held at De Pere in June and will be in the form of a picnic. The group will not convene during July or August, and Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Long will entertain in September in Clintonville.

clubhouse and at the main and music rooms at the high school. At 2:10 the solos will be ended until 4 o'clock to prepare the formation of the parade. It is expected to get started at 3 o'clock and will assemble on Walnut street.

The parade will move west on Kimberly avenue past the reviewing stand at the high school to Main street; north on Main to Beverly street; south on Sidney street to Kimberly avenue and back to the high school. Streets now closed because sewers are being laid, will all be open by Saturday.

Chief of Police John Bernardy will head the parade and extra police will be on duty to direct traffic over the side streets during the parade. Soloists will again be heard at 4 o'clock at the clubhouse and the music room at the high school and will conclude shortly after 5 o'clock. A concert starting at 7:30 will be played at the clubhouse during the evening.

Germany's famous Spring Fair in Leipzig had 9,800 exhibitors from 28 countries this year, a prosperity figure. Nations at war, including China and Japan, were represented by exhibits as usual. Buyers came from all parts of the world and buying reached near-record figures.

MEN WHO BUILD HOUSES

IX—Millwork and Tiles

Carpenters of the present day seldom make doors or windows for new houses. This work is done by millwork companies, and more often than not the companies do their work in another city—perhaps a place more than 100 miles distant.

A Tile Man at Work

We might suppose there would be trouble in getting the doors and windows to fit, and there may be such trouble. Yet the architect takes pains with his drawings, and the millwork company sends a man to measure the openings left by the carpenters. In this way the company learns the size, perhaps down to an eighth of an inch. Later the carpenters work to bring about an exact fit.

In addition, the millwork company is likely to build kitchen cupboards for the new house, and perhaps wardrobes, window-seats and bookcases as well. People should not forget built-in bookcases—such cases provide a neat and solid home for the family's library. We may save some money by not having too much "show" in our new house, and can use the saving for things which count more. Good books open new worlds to people who may read at their own fireside.

Big trucks bring the millwork to the site of the new home. The millwork is not delivered all at once, but load by load, on different days and weeks, as the carpenters come to be ready for it.

Meanwhile the tile man is busy working on the bathroom floors and walls. In these days, a good-sized house is seldom built with less than two bathrooms, and there may be from three to five bathrooms.

First class hotels have "a bath with every room." We may ask, "Why not a bath with every bedroom in a new home?" The answer isn't hard to find—it's a question of expense. Yet it seems a good idea, and if we use showers instead of tubs, the bathrooms do not cost quite so much.

Ready-made shower stalls, with porcelain sides, are on the market. At present they cost something like $70 apiece, and if their use grows the price may go down a great deal.

If we do not use such stalls, the tile man will line the walls around each shower with tiles, perhaps to a height of six feet. He may also cover the bathroom floors and walls with tiles. In some houses, a less costly coating—linoleum—is used.

Bathroom tiles are thin pieces of clay which have been "fired" in certain ways. Some of them, but not all, are glazed until they are glossy.

Tiles have been used for thousands of years. They were known in ancient Babylonia. They have been used in laying the floors of many churches in Europe, and colored tiles have been used to make interesting designs.

Roof tiles, made of stone or other material, are common in England and some other countries.

Paint Brush Is Busy for Cause Of Conservation

59 High School Sophomores are Participating in Art Project

Fifty-nine sophomore students at Appleton High school are painting for the cause of conservation in their daily art class under the direction of Peter Giovanni, art supervisor for the public schools.

The state of Wisconsin encourages the use of conservation as a subject in school art classes, believing that it is an effective way to enlist young people in the constant campaign for the protection and development of forests and game.

Two of the paintings which have been produced by the sophomores are reproduced on this page, one by Robert Bowers and the second by Arnold Abel. The students use show card colors in their work. The paintings which are regarded as worthwhile are displayed on bulletin boards opposite the art suite on the third floor of the high school.

Followers of art who are casting about for new subjects and exhibits to inspect might turn their attention to the Neville public museum at Green Bay, where the Polish National Exhibit will open Sunday, April 30.

A special program will be held at the museum the afternoon of the opening day, Mrs. A. F. Gilman of Green Bay, who was a Red Cross nurse in Poland, will be the speaker.

Valley Council Is Preparing to Build New Pool at Gardner Dam

Dismissal by the Wisconsin public service commission of an application by the valley council of boy scouts for permission to build a dam on the Wolf river at Gardner Dam, council camp, means the council will take the other alternative—construction of a swimming pool.

When the late Mrs. Helen L. Sloane of Appleton gave the council $4,500, she stipulated that it be used to improve swimming facilities at Gardner Dam. The council first proposed to build a dam with the money. The public service commission dismissed the request "without prejudice" because the dam theoretically would develop 50 horsepower for half of the year and the applicant in such cases is required by law to agree that the state can purchase the dam after 30 years.

Valley council officials pointed out today that plans for the dam were given up following the commission order because it would obviously be unwise to spend money on a project that would ultimately be returned to the state. This, it was explained, is not in keeping with Mrs. Sloane's wishes.

The commission, when it made its decision, declared the council can renew applications later if the conditions of the law can be met through further negotiations.

The council was aiming at improving not only swimming but also boating by building a dam.

A clause in the grant of the site to the council by the Wisconsin Michigan Power company forbade the assigning of any power rights for a period of 13 years.

240 Feet Long

The swimming pool, which will be built with the money given the council by Mrs. Sloane, will be located on the north river bank near the present swimming place.

It will be about 240 feet long and 100 feet wide, with a gravel bottom and rock walls. Water will be piped into the pool from the river and released back into the river. A diving platform and rafts will be constructed. The construction of the pool will be such that scouts may wade into it from any side, but there will be an area at one end, immediately below the diving raft, which will be about nine feet deep.

Officials of the council, among them Clarence Engberg, newly appointed executive, Tuesday discussed specifications and bids for the pool but have not reached a decision on who will get the contract.

The council has planned the opening construction for June so that the pool will be ready when the summer camping period opens in July.
